Convention

Again registering that same determination that enabled them and their comrades of 1861-65 to carry on to a successful conclusion, the triumph of the Union in that period of the country's history, Pennsylvania Department, Grand Army of the Republic, in its sixty-fifth annual session this morning refused to say farewell and selected Lancaster, Pa., for an encampment in 1931.

There was not an indication of faltering in this forward step of a year, when their numbers, must of necessity, be still less than they are at present.

A brilliant sun accompanied by cool breezes greeted the boys in blue assembled here in their 65th annual encampment this morning, giving promise of a glorious climax to the encampment of the Pennsylvania department of the Grand Army of the Republic.

More Veterans Arrive.

The group of boys of 61-65 who have been the guests of the city for several days was augmented to a considerable extent last night and this morning and there are fully 175 here for the parade and campfire, which will occur this evening at the Cathedral.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Local streams are considerably swollen today, following the heavy rain of yesterday. The rain which started during the night was one of the heaviest in some time, two inches of rain falling in about 14 hours.

One could not ask for more ideal weather for the G. A. R. parade this afternoon. The sun is not too warm and a cooling breeze is stirring.

It has been quite the thing for the High school students to practice yodelling on the streets but this morning on Washington street, Pa. New saw some uniformed men performing tricks with the boys. The uniforms weren't those of Boy Scouts either.

Local firemen were called out late Monday to the North Jefferson street dump, which started blazing again after a period of inactivity and have been pouring water on the smouldering pile for several days.

Pa. New observes that a number of benches have been placed at the old Rosena dam site along the Ne-shannock by the city. This would be an ideal spot for a sun bath, as there is no shade anywhere handy.

Library garden is getting along very nicely. Miss Alice Sterling and her staff are the gardeners and they have carefully made some neat rows of flowers. Pa. New is impatiently waiting the plants to bloom.

A dog family on Jefferson street is living quite fashionably. The mama dog and her sons and daughters have a vacant house all to themselves! They are at home to all their friends.

Daily Weather Report

Weather statistics for the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning are as follows:
Maximum temperature, 57.
Minimum temperature, 53.
Precipitation, 1.24 inches.
River stage 5.4 feet and rising.

MIX'S 'NAY' FAILS TO HALT RUTH

Tom Mix used to be pretty successful at catching bold bandits on the screen, and following their plots, but he came a cropper when he attempted to stop the marriage of his daughter, Ruth Jane, 17, and Douglas Gilmore, screen actor, at Yuma, Ariz. The ceremony was performed despite parental objections.

NO ONE INJURED, WINDOWS BLOWN OUT

(International News Service)
INDIANA, Pa., June 11.—Exploding with a terrific roar that rocked the countryside, a heavy charge of dynamite today partially wrecked the home of R. E. Wildermuth here.

Police believe the charge was planted near the Wildermuth residence by mistake and that the perpetrators of the outrage confused Wildermuth's home with that of County Detective Harry Koozer.

Koozer's home is three houses removed from that of Wildermuth and was not damaged by the blast. A side door and covering porch of the Wildermuth home were blown off when the explosion let go. Damage to the interior of the home was confined to plastering and woodwork, which were only slightly harmed.

None of the family was injured, although Mr. and Mrs. Wildermuth and their three children, Nancy, Jane and William, were in the home asleep at the time.

Glass in every window on the side of the house where the infernal machine exploded was shattered, as was window glass in a home directly across the street from Wildermuth's residence.

County Detective Koozer is believed to have incurred the wrath of bootleggers lately by his activity in raiding homes of foreigners while searching for illicit liquor manufacturers. The blast today was believed meant as a vengeance gesture.

A similar explosion recently wrecked the home of District Attorney L. Earle Miller, who has been active in prosecuting liquor law violators.

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special to the News)
NEW YORK, June 11.—Just back from Washington. Had a nice chat with President Hoover. He's looking fine, and in awful good humor.

Had the pleasure of keeping Senator Reed waiting till Mr. Hoover and I went over all the different "propositions." Dave will vote for the tariff. He is only waiting to be begged.

About a week from Saturday Mr. Hoover is going to let off, for good behavior, about 400 of his handiacaps, but going to keep 96 of the worst ones in, and make 'em listen to Senator Johnson. During those crisp Washington days of July.

Yours,

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, June 11.—Offering a total reward of $55,000, the newspapers of Chicago today presented a united front in demanding in no uncertain tones the arrest and conviction of the gang killers who shot and killed Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune police reporter, in broad daylight.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner today offered a $25,000 reward, bringing the total to $55,000. The Chicago Tribune previously had posted a reward of $25,000 and the Chicago Evening Post had offered $5,000. The press has branded the slaying of Lingle as an attempt at intimidation by the gangs.

Urges Police Probe
While every law enforcing agency in the city and county bent their efforts toward solving the murder of Lingle, Ald. James Bowler demanded a thorough investigation of the police department and its alleged connections with gangland. Bowler charged incompetency, police connivance with gangsters and urged a council investigation of the police department.

Accepting the slaying of Lingle as a challenge from the gang forces, the "Secret Six" committee of the Association of Commerce has launched a separate investigation.

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, June 11.—Chicago struck back secretly, silently and swiftly at gangland today for the assassination of Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Detective bureau squads, slashing into the haunts and hiding places of the underworld, hauled forty men to the detective bureau. Additional squads seized more men and hurried them to outlying police stations; all the prisoners were held incommunicado, secretly without being booked. Their names and identities, and the places of their arrest were kept secret.

Held Secretly
Ordinarily, when a prisoner is taken to the detective bureau or a police station, his name and record and the place of his arrest are entered on a slip of paper and given to the desk sergeant.

In today's raids, these slips were made out, but instead of being given to the desk sergeants, were sent directly to Deputy Commissioner of Detectives John Stege and his aides, who kept them locked away.

Senate To Vote On Tariff Bill Sometime Friday

Bill

LEADERS PREDICT PASSAGE FOR BILL

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Defying superstition the Senate will vote on "Friday the 13th" to finally pass or kill the administration's "billion-dollar" tariff bill with Republican leaders predicting final enactment.

The bill will be voted upon on "Friday the 13th" while its foes predicted the vote would be "unlucky" for those favoring the bill. But both sides were entirely willing to dare fortune by voting upon the "most unlucky day of all unlucky days"—a Friday, the 13th.

Not Superstitious
"I am delighted to vote on Friday the 13th or any other day," observed Senator Watson (R) of Ind., the majority leader. "I hope every Senator will be bold and defy fate by voting."

Anyone who is finicky about the date had better not vote against this bill, because I believe it will be far more fatal to vote against it than for it. The Democratic tariff leaders took a different view. Senator Barkley (D) of Ky., declared passage of the bill on that day would create another "black" Friday in American history. "If this monstrous measure is passed through the Senate on Friday the 13th, and becomes a law, it will create another 'Black Friday,'" said Barkley.

New Castle Woman Reported As Rescued In Steamer Collision

Early press dispatches from Boston today, listed as among the rescued in the Coastal Liner Fairfax disaster, Mrs. Ruth Brown, of New Castle, Pa. The News was unable to locate any Mrs. Ruth Brown of this city, who was on the ship.

A later message said that listed among the passengers who were aboard the ship were Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Brown, of New Castle, Pa. Neither could these be located as residents of the city, this morning.

It is possible that they are residents of Lawrence county, and were registered as being from New Castle.

Details are meagre as to whether Mrs. Ruth Brown is Mrs. G. H. Brown, but it is likely the case. The first despatch said that Mrs. Ruth Brown had been landed at Boston by one of the vessels which went to the rescue of the steamer in the collision.

Hoover's Power Is Challenged

Senate Challenges Power Of President Hoover In Refusing Treaty Information

HOOVER MAY STAND
BY HIS DECISION
By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 11.—President Hoover found himself involved in a controversy with the senate today that goes deep into the constitution and the basic powers of the presidency.

His refusal, through Secretary of State Stimson, to disclose to the Senate Foreign Relations committee the secret correspondence between the great naval powers that led up to the negotiation of the London Naval Treaty has stirred up an historical row.

Power Challenged
A resolution was being drafted today challenging the power of the executive to withhold documents that may have a vital effect upon the interpretation of an international treaty. It will be adopted by the committee, with three-fourths of its members supporting it.

What effect it will have on President Hoover remains to be seen. The belief prevails that Mr. Hoover will stand by his decision not to submit the correspondence to the committee, in the case there appears but little the committee can do.

The controversy, however, has already complicated ratification of the Pact of London, and today the treaty foes began to be really hopeful of blocking Senate action until next November.

Rates Hearing Is Postponed

Public Service Commission
Postpones Hearing On Short Haul Rates

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, June 11.—Coming soon after an announcement of the postponement by the Interstate Commerce Commission of its hearing of protests over its order abolishing circuitous rail routes used by Pittsburgh manufacturers the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission last night postponed its hearing on short haul rates on iron and steel in the Pittsburgh district from June 18 to July 9.

Coincidental with announcement of the postponement, commission officials announced that they had accepted the offer of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to hold their hearings in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium here instead of in the city-county building.

The fight of Pittsburgh shippers against abolition of the rail routes centers in their contention that upholding of the abolition order would deprive them of at least four principal routes to the East. Donald O. Moore, manager of the Traffic Division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, said that discontinuance of the circuitous routes would handicap local transportation and drive business, ordinarily sent here, to other cities.

City Engineer Frank Miller stated today that paving of Furnace street would start this afternoon Council let a contract for the paving about a week ago. The section to be paved is not long.

Turn back the years for a little while, back to the days of yore, turn back the pages to other days, to the days of the Civil War. Picture the laddies who marched away, striplings of seventeen, for these are the lads that you see today, with their minds and their faculties keen. Those heroes of Shiloh and Gettysburg, you see on the streets today, with shoulders stooped and their hair snow white, but their spirits are just as gay, as the day they left for the blue clad host that gathered at Lincoln's command, not many left, but the few there are, are a gallant heroic band. Turn back the years for a little while, give Old Father Time the gate, for the laddies are out in parade today, and the weather is eighty-eight.

Philadelphia Is Not Two Million, Census Reveals

Believe Detroit Will Pass Philadelphia As Third City In United States

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Philadelphia's failure to reach the 2,000,000 population class resulted in predictions today that by 1940 the Quaker city will have lost its prestige as the third city of the nation.

The rapid growth of Detroit from 993,678 in 1920 to 1,564,397 has firmly established the Michigan auto metropolis in fourth place and the fact that Philadelphia only gained 128,885 in the ten-year period for a population of 1,950,000 this year indicates this city will drop to fourth place at the completion of the next census, many predict.

Electric Company Files New Tariff

Reductions To Be Made Along Harmony Electric Section

Following promptly upon the consolidation of the Harmony Electric as an integral part of the Pennsylvania Power company, which was announced from Harrisburg May 31, the Pennsylvania Power company has filed a new tariff with the public service commission of Pennsylvania, making important reductions in rates for residential and commercial electric service throughout the territory formerly served by the Harmony Electric.

The voluntary reduction in rates was filed with the commission by the Pennsylvania Power company as quickly as possible after the consolidation was authorized in accordance with the policy of the company to afford its customers the opportunity to use electric service under the lowest reasonable rates consistent with its high standard of efficient and dependable service.

The new rates, which are scheduled to become effective July 9, compare favorably with all other rates for residential and commercial service throughout the Pittsburgh area and are uniform throughout the territory formerly served by the Harmony.

Nice Popular With Americans

(International News Service) NICE, June 11.—Nice is fast becoming a little American city. Latest statistics show that between four and five thousand Americans, and these are not tourists, but Americans indefinitely sojourning or definitely settled, have adopted this city as their homeland. They live in small hotels, apartments or villas near Nice and nearby cities. Large up-to-date apartment houses are being built for them every year and there are many branches of well-known clubs and organizations established for their pleasure.

Before the war, the Italian and French Riviera were made gay and prosperous by the patronage of the Archdukes of Austria, Hungary and Russia. Today, almost the sole survivor who visits the casinos of Europe is the Grand Duke Dimitri, who married the American heiress, Princess Hlinsky.

In Italy, so far the majority of the tourists are Germans and Austrians, but a large number of Americans are expected later on.

Says Sphinx Would Talk About U. S.

(International News Service) MANCHESTER, England, June 11.—"If ever the Sphinx could have got to America and had been allowed to return, he would have broken his silence," declared Vivian Carter, who one time was editor of the "Rotarian", upon his arrival from the States.

One month was a statutory limit during which to become an authority on America and all things American. "If one stays longer, one gets behind the skyline of New York and loses one's sense of the enormity of the position," he said.

"When you get over there, the American will tell you that you have not gone there to give them pleasure, but to get their dollars. That it is not far from wrong."

Speaking of "Big Bill Thompson," he said: "You must not take too much notice of him. They don't over there. The homes in New York City, he declared, are places where you sleep, or use as a meeting place for your wife. If a friend is to be entertained he is taken to a hotel or club.

As a people, the Americans are appreciable, assimilative and receptive.

Women Clubs Irked At City Billboards

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Ill., June 11.—Those tall, ugly, over-bearing silent vendors, popularly known as billboards, are in the way here today.

This is the viewpoint of a group of women's clubs in the city who are urging the removal of all billboards because they lend nothing to the enhancement of local civic beauty, obstruct the view, and not only serve to cheapen the property upon which they stand, but too often succeed in driving citizens from locating homes near them.

Bishop Cannon Is Again Appearing Before Committee

Bishop Cannon, Jr., Walked Out On Senate Committee—Has Changed His Mind

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, June 11.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who a week ago defied the senate lobby committee and walked out on it with the assertion that he would not appear again unless formally subpoenaed, changed his mind today and did appear.

Obviously uneasy over the possibility of his being prosecuted for contempt, the Methodist cleric appeared before the committee today unasked and uninvited, and declared that he "had not meant any contempt of the senate" by his defiant action of last week.

CHICAGO CITIZENS DEMAND ARREST OF LINGLE'S SLAYER

over the news gatherer's murder. Demands that this was one murder that must be solved were coming from all quarters today. Lingle, who had covered the intricate affairs of the underworld for his newspaper for several years, was shot down Monday in the midst of a subway crowd as he made his way toward a train. The killer escaped.

Authorities today sought left-handed gunman and ex-convict who is believed to have been imported from Brooklyn for the Lingle murder as well as several others of the eleven murders that marked the ten days of gang warfare.

There came from the Capone gangsters today what was regarded as a gesture to show they had no hand in Lingle's death. The dead newsman was known to have been an informant of the gang. A representative of the Capone gang notified police that he will surrender Sam Hunt, Murray Humphrey and Ralph Pierce, all of whom have been identified from police pictures as resembling the one or the other of the two men who put Lingle on his "spot."

The snub-nosed revolver used in the slaying has now become the most promising clue to the slayer's identity. Coroner Herman Bundesen announced last night. The coroner did not divulge whether or not the serial numbers, which had been filed off, had been traced by a new acid process used for that purpose.

That the reporter had been marked for death was revealed to authorities by Attorney Louis P. Piquet, who described a meeting with Lingle last Sunday twenty-four hours before he was slain. In the midst of their conversation an automobile drew up and Lingle glanced at its two occupants, suddenly stopped talking and wheeled about and walked hurriedly away.

Authorities also learned that the supposed killer had been watching the Stevens Hotel, where Lingle lived, an hour before the shooting.

Nearly every available officer and detective was thrown into the manhunt for Lingle's slayer. Officials of the police department and the coroner's office toiled far into the night in directing the search.

It was announced that several clues regarded as of high importance were being investigated. The fixed purpose of the investigation, however, was to withhold all important clues from the public until they had been thoroughly investigated, thus a shroud of secrecy today hid the procedure of police.

It was reported that the killer described to police by witnesses was known. Authorities refused to divulge the name, however, merely stating that he was a known killer who had been imported from Brooklyn for the express purpose of slaying Lingle, the newsman who "knew too much" about the affairs of gangland.

Laundries join the campaign against soft-collar shirts. There's no fun in wrecking an opponent who can't put on a stiff resistance.

War Buddies Reunited After 12 Years

(International News Service) CHARLOTTE, Pa., June 11.—Twelve years ago two buddies trudged their weary way through the shell holes and mud that constituted the Argonne sector in France.

They were Herbert Dreyer of Bentleyville and Frank Yates, of Charleroi, two Pennsylvania cities only a few miles apart.

Two weeks later, the armistice was signed.

And here's the queer quirk of the story. Dreyer returned to Bentleyville and Yates returned to Charleroi and lived within a few miles of each other for twelve years.

Yet they did not meet, since that night in the Argonne salient, until Dreyer entered a Charleroi cigar store here a few days ago.

SEA ABLAZE AS OIL TANKER AND STEAMER CRASH

Norfolk and Baltimore liner punctured a hole on the port side stern of the tanker, terrific explosions sent flaming sheets toward the passenger vessel and surrounded the tanker.

Seven passengers—four of them women—and eleven members of the crew of the Fairfax were engulfed and were reported to have leaped into the sea.

Tanker Aflame
Meanwhile, the tanker, loaded with eleven thousand gallons of gasoline, burst into flames and sank. The men of the tanker had no chance to save themselves.

Eight injured were brought here by the steamship Gloucester, sister ship of the Fairfax, which in a gallant sea rescue took survivors from the Fairfax aboard and landed them here. The Fairfax anchored near a buoy off Minot's Ledge repairing the damage to her prow before proceeding to Boston through the fog under her own steam.

Seventy-One Passengers
There were seventy-one passengers aboard the Fairfax and those willing to give eye-witness accounts of the sea disaster presented a gasty picture of the seven passengers, four of them women, running down the bow of the Fairfax screaming with pain from their burning clothing and leaping into the sea to relieve their suffering. Some of them were reported as "Living Torches." Eleven members of the crew of the Fairfax were caught in the sweep of the gasoline-fueled flames and they were reported to have leaped into the sea.

Sea Aflame
"The sea was flaming," said Edward G. Cullen, naval quartermaster and passenger aboard the Fairfax. "I saw three men and four women leaped. They didn't have a chance for life. A few minutes later eleven sailors, their clothing aflame, also plunged in. They were swallowed up in the inferno."

J. V. Waters, of Kittery, Maine, lost his life in a brave attempt to save one of the women. As she plunged over the side, Waters reached out, grasped her hand as she struggled in the water but in trying to lift the woman back to the deck lost his grip on the slippery deck rail and dropped into the flaming sea.

Meanwhile, a veritable geyser of fire was shooting from the tanker. Explosion followed explosion until the sea became a bedlam of suffering humanity.

Lifeboats and Radio Useless
Lifeboats and radio, which usually play so important a part immediately in a sea disaster were useless. The radio gear was shattered by the impact and had to be repaired. The launching of lifeboats was impossible immediately as they would have been fog-bound sea.

However, when the steamship Gloucester, which had followed the Fairfax out of Boston and carrying only sixteen passengers poked her nose through the fog the sheets of flaming gasoline had subsided allowing the launching of lifeboats. From the deck of the Fairfax passengers were transferred, boat after boat, to the deck of the Gloucester.

There was some criticism by passengers, who refused to be quoted of the apparent failure to send out an S. O. S. distress call. An official of the line, however, said that a call went out after the radio apparatus had been repaired. It was to a call for help that the Gloucester so gallantly responded.

The fog siren of the liner was sounding, according to all reports, but nobody could be found who heard the tanker's fog whistle.

Crew Is Lost
FALL RIVER, Mass., June 11.—Officials of the New England Oil Company announced today that all hope had been abandoned that Captain Albert G. Jones or any of his crew of 22 men aboard the Oil tanker Pinthis, rammed and sunk in a sea of flaming oil off Scituate, had been saved.

The Pinthis was bound to Chelsea and Portland, Maine, from Fall River with 11,500 gallons of gasoline.

It was estimated that she sank within half hour after the sea crash.

Trapped in Inferno
Boston, June 11.—Trapped in a flaming inferno of gasoline and oil, forty-six persons, according to latest official estimates today, were drowned or burned to death in Massachusetts Bay, off Scituate last night, in a crash in the darkest of all. Between the Merchant and Miners liner Fairfax, Boston to Norfolk and Baltimore, and the oil tanker Pinthis, Fall River to Chelsea and Portland, Maine.

Eleven passengers of the Fairfax were officially reported missing. Death toll among the crew was estimated at twelve. All three were given up for the twenty-three men aboard the tanker, which went to the bottom in a geyser of flame.

The steamship Gloucester, sister ship of the Fairfax, brought into port eight injured, who were removed to Carney hospital, and others saved from the Fairfax in a gallant sea rescue.

Later, the Fairfax, herself, portside burned clear of paint and life boats on that side blackened bulks, poked her way through the fog to her dock here.

Meanwhile, stories of heroism of the crew of the Fairfax were mingled with sharp criticism. Chief Quartermaster Edward G. Cullen, of the airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington, and several other passengers declared that eleven members of the crew of the Fairfax, armed with clubs and axes stationed themselves in a lifeboat and even tore lifebelts from the panic-stricken men, women and children.

John C. Kenyon, who, as head of the University of Chicago's Board of Vocational Guidance and Placement, receives some odd requests in his work of finding jobs, temporary and permanent, for the students regards this as his most unusual.

Drought Endangers Drinking Water

(International News Service) ST. THOMAS, V. I., June 11.—A shortage of drinking water in this island is causing the inhabitants grave concern.

The population depends exclusively upon rainfall for their supply of drinking water, as there are no wells in the Virgin Islands which supply drinking water. The water is caught from the roofs of houses and impounded in spacious cisterns. When there is no rainfall over a long period of time a crisis is precipitated. Such is the case at the present time.

The drought is also affecting the island in other ways. The milk supply has been reduced to a minimum through lack of grass upon which cattle are fed here. This is causing serious loss to cattle raisers as cattle are dying for want of food and water.

Through the generosity of the United States congress a few years ago the island was able to build four reservoirs for impounding rain water. By this means a large quantity of water is kept for use in such emergencies. It is largely due to these reservoirs that the island's supply of water is not entirely exhausted as it is piped into the city and distributed to crowds of thirsty people.

It is said here that since the year 1876 the island has not had such a severe drought as the present one.

[NUMBER TWO] JIMMY FOXX

"Look at those shoulders! That boy's a natural-born batting wonder."

Jimmy Foxx was just a rookie when Canny Connie Mack gave him that size-up. Four years later he was crowding the swat kings of both big leagues for the batting championship.

And just that Nature-given goodness lifted OLD GOLD from a rookie brand to a big league leader in four years' time. Naturally better tobaccos . . . free from all irritants.

OLD GOLD created an entirely new type of cigarette enjoyment. It added a new taste thrill and took out all the throat scratch. That's why its sales have eclipsed the record of three other leading brands combined, in a like period of their existence.

IN THE SUMMER OF '27 OLD GOLD WAS FIRST PUT ON SALE IN BALTIMORE. IN LESS THAN THREE MONTHS IT WAS ONE OF THE FOUR BIGGEST SELLING CIGARETTES THROUGHOUT MARYLAND.

ONE YEAR BEFORE JIMMY FOXX JOINED THE "A's" HE WAS MILKING COWS IN MARYLAND. FOUR YEARS LATER HE WAS CHALLENGING THE BEST IN BOTH LEAGUES FOR THE BATTING CHAMPIONSHIP.

May Attempt To Change Election Laws In State

Election Reform Need Is Likely To Be Given Much Attention

CAMPAIGN EXPENSE COMES UNDER FIRE

(Special To The News)
HARRISBURG, June 11—Efforts to enact changes in the election laws are sure to be attempted during the 1931 session of the legislature. Biennially candidates for the General Assembly stress the necessity for election law reform. Each session there are a flood of such measures, and as a general rule a few of them become enacted into law.

The present court cases growing out of the last primary probably will be instrumental in securing some legislation on the more important points involved. The perforation of ballots is not covered in the present election laws.

Expense accounts being filed with the State Department also reveal a growing evil. A considerable sum of the money expended in many counties was credited with going under the head of "transportation of voters." The legislature recently banned the payment of money for dissemination of information, but other ways have been found by which campaign money is expended.

Study of the expense accounts also shows numerous payments in small sums to persons for advertising. Whether these payments were made for passing around hand bills, verbal advertising or in what form it was done is not disclosed in the reports being received here.

The election bureau probably may have some recommendations to make for changes in the election laws. One of the most important suggestions that may be urged is a change in the date for the filing of nomination petitions.

As the law now stands the final date for filing petitions by candidates for statewide office and also the legislature are on the same day. The election bureau officials favor the date for receiving petitions for the General Assembly candidates possibly a week or 10 days before the others. That would do away with the last-minute rush of petitions by all the candidates.

Local Reserve Officers Are Called For Duty

Will Take Part In Maneuvers At Camp Meade July 6 To July 19

Under orders which are now being issued, several local officers, members of the 97th Division, Infantry Reserve, will participate in the command post exercise to be held at Camp Meade, July 6 to 19.

They will have an important part in the military maneuvers repelling theoretical attacks by an invading "enemy" landing in Chesapeake bay and moving toward Washington.

They will travel individually to Camp Meade, Md., where they will report for duty.

Among those who have been summoned to report at this time are Col. Daniel H. McQuiston of New Wilmington and Capt. W. K. Smith of Ellwood City.

As it is we have more sympathy for Gandhi than if he had started a revolt for mayonnaise dressing.—The Duluth Herald.

Wouldn't it be fun to play the market if you had your hands on the G. C. P.'s whole campaign fund!

"It Controls the Nerves"

"I am a saleslady in a store. My nerves got the best of me and I never had good finger nails because I could not stop biting them off. My appetite was poor and I was always tired. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I know that it controls the nerves because I have no desire to bite my nails now, and they are long and well kept. My appetite is enormous and I feel like a new person. I have recommended your medicine to many girls with the same good results."—Ethel Fleetwood, 3023 Bandin Street, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Sons Of Veterans Observe 50 Years Of Organization

Banquet At The Castleton Takes On Appearance Of Jubilee

OVER 200 ATTEND TUESDAY AFFAIR

Closing fifty long years of steady growth and notable progress, delegates to the annual encampment of the Pennsylvania Department, Sons of Union Veterans, assembled in the Castleton Tuesday evening with the members of the Sons' auxiliary to fittingly mark the occasion.

Two hundred and seventeen Sons, their wives and special guests were present. The auxiliary ladies attended as special guests of the Sons.

Officially as toastmaster over the program, which followed the anniversary dinner, was Past Commander-in-Chief Walter C. Mable, of Camp 200, Philadelphia. In his role as presiding officer and master of ceremonies, Mable lived up to expectations and everything clicked to perfection.

The anniversary banquet program, only arranged on Tuesday morning, was on the order of an impromptu affair and those who spoke had no set speeches.

They impressed upon the members once more the fundamental purpose of the organization, challenging all to continue to be mindful of it. The story of the Pennsylvania department from its inception was also told.

Speakers during the evening included Past Commander-in-Chief S. S. Horn, Easton, Pa. Commander-in-Chief John E. Sauter, Pittsburgh, Pa. Department Commander J. E. Seipp, Philadelphia, who is presiding over the encampment here and Department President Mrs. Clara Samuels of the Sons' auxiliary, from Philadelphia.

Before the speaking program had closed, National Commander-in-Chief Theodore C. Cazeau, of Rochester, N. Y., with Mrs. Cazeau, were announced by Toastmaster Mable. The national head of the Sons of Veterans with his wife had only arrived a few minutes before. A round of applause went up from the banquet room when the national commander was introduced. Mr. Cazeau responded to the vociferous greetings in a brief but most appropriate way.

Following the speaking period came a series of stunts presented under the auspices of different camp auxiliaries.

"The Jewish Wedding," a short skit, given by the ladies of the Lincoln social, Philadelphia Camp No. 200.

"Turkey in the straw," song and dance; Mrs. Gertrude Carnes, Camp 180, Uniontown, and Mrs. Nellie Young, Camp 1, Philadelphia.

"Female Sons of Veterans," another skit, given by the ladies of the Lehigh valley.

Songs of the order, sung by Mrs. Daisy Herdman, of Camp 16, Johnstown, was the closing number.

Past National President Mrs. Mayme Dwyer, of New York, attending the convention as a guest of the Pennsylvania department was also introduced at this time. Mrs. Dwyer will remain until the sessions close.

COMMANDER READS ANNUAL REPORT

Sixty-fifth annual encampment of the Pennsylvania department, Grand Army of the Republic, convened in official session this morning in the ballroom of the Castleton at 10 o'clock this morning with Department Commander Philip Engelskirger of Oil City presiding. The ballroom was crowded with delegates from all parts of the state.

The session was opened with an address of welcome by the Hon. James A. Chambers of Lawrence county, a Son of a Union Veteran. His remarks were of a patriotic and inspirational character and were received with enthusiasm by the encampment.

Response to his welcome was made by L. F. Arensberg, past national commander-in-chief and past state commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, which were most fitting and appropriate.

Paternal greetings were received from a delegation of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic and response was made by Comrade A. M. Brackneridge.

A group of Daughters of Union Veterans from Ohio were admitted and rendered patriotic vocal selections, which were appreciated.

Just before the close of the morning session Theodore Cazeau of Rochester, N. Y., national commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, was presented to the encampment and received an ovation, as he addressed the encampment and pledged the Sons of Union Veterans to continue the ideals and purposes of the G. A. R. Comrade H. E. Paine made the response.

Lancaster was the unanimous selection of the encampment as the place of meeting of the state encampment in 1931.

Commander Philip Engelskirger read his annual report, which was approved by vote of the encampment. It was stated at noon by Samuel P. Town, assistant adjutant of the department of Pennsylvania, that officers for the ensuing year would probably be elected at the session this afternoon.

Sidelights On Convention

Ladies of the First Methodist church served lunch and dinner to 150 members of the Daughters of Union Veterans, Tuesday, in the church dining room. The Daughters were enthusiastic in their praise of the dinner.

William H. Shafer and H. V. Cares, veterans of Altoona, have one big birthday party, every five years. Cares was born on the 14th of February, 1845, and Shafer was born on the 15th of the same month, in the same year. They had a party last year and certainly had a jolly time. "Just wait until 1934, and watch us make whoopee," they say. They will be 90 years of age at their next party.

Some of these vets are certainly making hits with the ladies. It isn't unusual sight to see four or five ladies listening with profound attention to one of the twinkling eyed old soldiers. Then too, we saw a soldier sitting at the head of a crowd of women seated at a table in a local restaurant. Wonder if it was a Dutch treat or if the old gent paid the bill?

One of the boys, while reminiscing this morning, spoke of the Seven Days' battle before Richmond with the battle of Oak Grove, on the 25th of June. When a person can re-

They were escorted amid waving flags to the platform.

When they had completed their remarks, Mrs. Mary G. Caldwell, encampment soloist, sang a beautiful selection in keeping with the occasion.

At high noon today the department encampment held a memorial service in honor of deceased members. Mrs. Jennie Houston, department president, and Mrs. James, department chaplain, were in charge.

The Sons of Union Veterans this morning sent greetings by a delegation headed by J. Edward Seipp, department commander, who told the ladies that Lancaster had been selected as the encampment city next year.

Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Elks club, the past department presidents will hold a dinner in honor of the retiring department president, Mrs. Jennie Houston.

GIVE RECEPTION FOR NATIONAL HEAD OF S. OF V.

Three Past Commanders Also In Attendance At Convention

National Commander-in-Chief Theodore C. Cazeau of the Sons of Union Veterans, from Rochester, N. Y., was in attendance today upon the sessions of the annual encampment of the Pennsylvania department, having arrived in the city unexpectedly last night while the anniversary banquet of the department at The Castleton was in progress.

As commander-in-chief of the national organization, Mr. Cazeau ranks as the highest executive officer of the Sons of Veterans in America.

A formal reception was tendered their chief by the delegates, meeting in the Sons of Veterans hall at the city building. Commander Cazeau responded brought greetings from the national officers.

Shortly after the national commander reached here last night, National Secretary and Treasurer, H. H. Hammer, of Reading, signed the convention register at the Fountain Inn. Mr. Hammer is the postmaster of Reading.

The encampment this year is honored by the presence of three past commander-in-chiefs, John E. Sauter, of Pittsburgh; Samuel S. Horn, Easton, and Walter C. Mable, of Philadelphia.

Another high in the ranks of the veterans is Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief Park F. Yengling, who comes from Bay Village, Ohio. Yengling also occupies the commandship of the Ohio Sons of Veterans Reserves, the same which Col. Edwin J. Prittle holds here.

Yengling is also a past commander of the Ohio department.

Family Name With Paper For 73 Years

GENESCO, Ill., June 11.—When the Genesco Republic issues its 75th anniversary edition tomorrow the publishers, Will and Charles Lieberknecht, may look back upon 73 years that their families name has been associated with the staunch Republican party weekly.

Their father, Adam Lieberknecht joined the Republic in 1857, became past owner in 1863 and purchased the paper outright in 1877.

The files of the Republic for 1856 bear editorialists urging election of John C. Fremont for President of the United States. Later the paper supported Abraham Lincoln for the same post.

The elder Lieberknecht was appointed consul to Tampico, Mexico, in 1890. President McKinley appointed him consul to Zurich in 1897. He served for nine years in Switzerland.

The sons of Adam Lieberknecht took over the paper in 1900. The present publishers were assisted by another brother, J. Frank Lieberknecht, until his death in 1924.

Sidelights On Convention

Ladies of the First Methodist church served lunch and dinner to 150 members of the Daughters of Union Veterans, Tuesday, in the church dining room. The Daughters were enthusiastic in their praise of the dinner.

William H. Shafer and H. V. Cares, veterans of Altoona, have one big birthday party, every five years. Cares was born on the 14th of February, 1845, and Shafer was born on the 15th of the same month, in the same year. They had a party last year and certainly had a jolly time. "Just wait until 1934, and watch us make whoopee," they say. They will be 90 years of age at their next party.

Some of these vets are certainly making hits with the ladies. It isn't unusual sight to see four or five ladies listening with profound attention to one of the twinkling eyed old soldiers. Then too, we saw a soldier sitting at the head of a crowd of women seated at a table in a local restaurant. Wonder if it was a Dutch treat or if the old gent paid the bill?

One of the boys, while reminiscing this morning, spoke of the Seven Days' battle before Richmond with the battle of Oak Grove, on the 25th of June. When a person can re-

National Commander Addresses Sons Of Veterans Meeting

UPHOLDS IDEALS OF ORGANIZATION

Upholding the hope that all Sons of Veterans will forever remember the sacred obligations they owe to the veterans of the Grand Army, their fathers, and emphasizing the need for good leadership among its ranks, National Commander-in-Chief Theodore C. Cazeau of the Sons of Union Veterans discussed the ideals for this morning session of the Pennsylvania Department, in session at the City Building.

Commander Cazeau, whose home city is Rochester, N. Y., dropped into the city unheralded last night. His visit proved a surprise as no advance word of his coming had been received.

The address of the national commander marked today's session of the veterans, whose 50th annual encampment was formally opened with appropriate ceremonies on Monday afternoon at 1:30. Department Commander J. Edward Seipp of Philadelphia, who will preside throughout the encampment, officiated.

Reports of the various committees and greetings from the allied organizations of the Sons of Veterans, in session here this week, featured most of Monday afternoon's program and that of this morning. The convention adjourned shortly after noon today for the afternoon's parade at 3 o'clock.

Greetings from the Daughters of Veterans was conveyed this morning by representatives of the department, Anna E. Kline, Sarah Shoff and Cora Wilson. Three sons were provided an escort to the Daughters, and included D. H. Harnisch, Harrisburg; Howard F. Boorse, Landsdale, and Ira Knapp, Bethlehem.

Hon. S. S. Horn, national commander-in-chief of the Sons in 1923, chairman of the officers' reports committee also appeared on this morning's program. He summarized the activities of the department officers during the past year.

At noon today registrations of Sons of Veterans neared the 150 mark, with others in attendance not yet registered. A party of delegates from the eastern section of the state reached the city late last night and more who will arrive this afternoon are expected to boost the attendance figure.

The convention of Sons will not meet in session until tomorrow morning, when election of new department officers will feature. At that time the resolution and other special committees named to serve during the encampment will report.

The Sons of Veterans will join with the Sons of Veterans auxiliary tonight, together with every other allied organization of the G. A. R. meeting here, in the camp fire service for Grand Army veterans in the Cathedral auditorium tonight. It is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock.

At the opening session Monday, the Hon. Fred L. Rantz, chairman of the executive committee in charge of convention arrangements welcomed the Sons. Mr. Rantz told the delegates that New Castle felt honored in being chosen an encampment city and wished them all a pleasant stay. S. S. Horn, of Easton, past commander-in-chief responded for the delegates.

Featuring the encampment was the 50th anniversary banquet, held last night at the Castleton, an account of which is carried elsewhere in this issue.

Marking the banquet was the presentation of five $20 gold pieces by the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary to Department Commander J. E. Seipp of the Sons.

Committees named to serve during the encampment, and which are taking a leading part in the week's activities, are as follows:

Greetings to the G. A. R.: John E. Sauter, H. H. Harnisch, Walter C. Mable and Judge Eugene C. Bonnell; Greetings to the Ladies of the G. A. R.: Alfred Lloyd, Charles Aument and James Diamond; Greetings to the Woman's Relief Corps: Ralph Campbell, Titus M. Ruch and Joseph M. Dwyer; Greetings to the Sons' Auxiliary: S. S. Horn, James M. National Officers Are Guests At Session In Elks Home Today

MRS. SAMUELS IS PRESIDING OFFICER

After greeting Commander-in-Chief Theodore C. Cazeau of the Sons of Union Veterans, Past National President Mayme E. Dwyer and Past National President Molly D. Hammer of the Sons' auxiliary, and hearing reports submitted by numerous convention committees, delegates to the 47th annual convention of the Pennsylvania department, Sons of Union Veterans Auxiliary, recessed at 12 o'clock for the remainder of the day.

Ladies of the organization, headed by their department president, Mrs. Clara Samuels of Philadelphia, are participating this afternoon with delegates of the different organizations in the convention street parade.

While their husbands were in session at the City building all morning transacting routine matters, the auxiliary members held their meeting in the Elks lodge room.

Reception of different greetings' committees also marked the program this morning, and the auxiliary in turn had its designated committees carry messages of greetings to the brother and sister order.

Mrs. Clara Samuels, department president occupied the presiding chair during the entire morning.

Traditional convention honors were paid to the visiting officials this morning, with different representatives of the department welcoming each one individually. Commander Cazeau of the Sons was responded to by Past National Commander-in-Chief John E. Sauter, Pittsburgh, while Mrs. Dwyer, past national president of the auxiliary was responded to by Past National President Molly Hammer of the New Jersey department.

Present this morning were several representatives of the Youngstown, Ohio, Auxiliary No. 2. The greetings committees of the Daughters of Veterans was also received.

Featuring the afternoon session of Monday were the presentations made Gifts were presented to Mrs. Bertha Daugherty and Mrs. Nellie Sweet of the New Castle Auxiliary No. 249, by Mrs. Margaret House, Department President Mrs. Samuels also presented Mrs. Daugherty with a mesh bag for her faithful service to the department in her convention activities.

The reports of Mrs. Samuels and other department officers were also received, and proved gratifying.

Gifts from the auxiliary to the amount of $150 were given to each of the three G. A. R. homes in Pennsylvania. A memorial window was presented to the home at 56th and Ninth streets, Philadelphia, of the Lehigh Valley association.

Greetings' committees from the Sons of Veterans of the civil war, composed of the Hon. S. S. Horn, James Smith, past department commander and Arthur Lehi, department commander, also reported. Their report of the progress of their organization proved most interesting.

Camp fire services in which each of the organization whose encampment is now in session here will take part tonight will occupy the attention of the auxiliary ladies tonight. It will occur at the Cathedral. Nomination and election of officers will mark the program of Thursday morning and adjournment will probably be reached about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Widow Of Slain Beer Runner Is Reported Missing

Mrs. William J. Gregory, Important Witness Against Fazio Is Missing

MALINO TESTIMONY QUITE DAMAGING

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, June 11.—With the state expected to rest its case today, new complications in the trial of Philip Fazio, on trial for the murder of William J. Gregory, "double-crossing" beer runner, were foreseen with definite information that Mrs. Alberta Gregory, the victim's wife, is missing.

Mrs. Gregory was expected to be an important state witness. Her mysterious disappearance from the home of Ohio relatives became known yesterday when Columbus and Canton officials notified County Detective George W. Murren they had been unable to obtain any trace of her.

Important Witness
The highlight of the proceedings thus far came late yesterday when James Malino, former henchman of Fazio, took the witness stand and told a graphic story of having been offered $200 by the defendant to kill Gregory, reputed to have double-crossed the liquor syndicate who employed him by selling a truck and its load of beer in Ohio.

While armed guards stood in strategic spots in the courtroom, Malino quoted Fazio as having said to him: "Do you want to make $200? It's easy. Hit him on the head with this wrench and throw a rope around his neck."

Fazio said to him after the murder, Malino testified, "some other bootlegger knocked off Bill. If anyone asks you, you know nothing." "I know nothing," Malino said he replied.

Third Floor Of Public Library Is Being Used

Crowded Conditions Necessitated Installing Of Additional Shelving

Shelves to hold additional books at the public library have been placed on the third floor of the library building, and books are being placed on them. It was necessary to have the new shelves because of the fast growing number of books. The library building had become as crowded in their present quarters as they were, several years ago, when located in the Haney building.

Books not often used and duplicate books will be placed on the third floor shelves, Miss Alice Sterling, librarian, announces.

Payroll Thugs In Pittsburgh Get $3,000 In Loot

Secretary Of Towel Supply Company Robbed Of $3,000
Payroll By Bandits

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, June 11.—Three armed bandits today kidnaped Abe Silverberg, secretary of the American Coat, Apron, Towel and Supply Co. and drove him in his own automobile to Riverview Park where they robbed him of a $3,000 payroll.

The bandits made their escape in Silverberg's car.

Silverberg was returning from the Provident Trust Company, where he had obtained the payroll. As he drove up before his company's office the three men jumped into the car and overpowered him.

A police dragnet was spread about the city when the report of the robbery was flashed to headquarters.

The machine in which the bandits fled bore Pennsylvania license tags numbered 9-J-552. The company's car number, 12, was painted on the side.

Silverberg's description of the bandits tallied roughly with that of the three youths who staged a $2,039 holdup here yesterday.

Many Of Roundheads Unable To Attend Reunion Send Letters

Not many of the survivors of the famous Roundhead regiment were able to attend the Reunion this year.

According to present records, only 57 of the 2014 enlisted men survive and they reside in 17 different states of the Union. There are 31 still in Pennsylvania, four in Ohio, three in Iowa, two each in Florida, Kansas and California, and one each in New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Michigan, Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wyoming, and Oregon.

Of the original 900 enlisting in 1861, nearly 300 fell in battle or died in camp, hospital, or prison pen, and many of these men lie in unknown graves. Of the 2014 enrolled, 248 were killed or died of wounds, 168 died of disease and 587 were wounded.

The 100th Regiment was exceeded by very few regiments of the Union Army. Every year since the war, many of the comrades have answered the roll call on the other shore.

Comrade Dies

During the past year, General William A. Clark, who served for three years as a member of Co. B, and who was at the last reunion elected president of the Roundhead Association to succeed Col. Norman J. Maxwell, died May 22, 1930.

Other deaths reported during the year were:

Co. D—Jacob Stevens.
Co. E—John M. Anderson.
Co. M—Jeremiah G. Gordon.
Co. M—Samuel Fenwick.

Among the records of the late James C. Stevenson, who served as secretary of the Association for over 50 years, was found a poem composed and read by Rev. Samuel Taggart as a welcome to the Roundheads on their return from the war in August 1865.

The poem follows:

We come here to welcome you home with delight.

You proved yourself heroes in many a fight.

Since peace has returned you are entitled to rest.

May heaven now crown you with blessings the best.

Your country called loud for brave hearts and strong hands

To go forth and conquer the traitorous bands.

To this call you answered, "we come, here we are.

For the Union and right we are ready to war

The Keystone stands firm in the Union's proud arch.

Her sons stood unshaken in battle and march.

They purchased fresh laurers, she justly may wear.

The "Roundheads," brave boys, may claim their full share.

Proud despots imagined that they had such might.

That one could with ease, put five Yankees to flight

But all such boasting proved to be vain.

Their lands are laid waste and their chivalry slain.

They thought to build up a tyrannical throne

With slavery laid for its cheap cornerstone.

Alas, human blindness, what they thought to save.

Has by their own blindness found a deep bloody grave.

Let slavery lie in its putrid remains.

While liberty, blood-bought, continually reigns

To God of our battles, be given our thanks.

Who ruled in our councils: directed our ranks.

This glorious Union, we know He will bless.

And crown our just efforts with signal success.

Restraining our foes from without and within.

Making us free from all national sin.

Send Regrets

Some not able to be present this year have sent their regrets.

Hon. John W. Morrison, of Wayne, Pa., (only surviving member of field and staff) writes:

"If you could curtail the years, I have lived and the miles of steel rails between here and New Castle, I would try to go to the meeting of the dear old survivors of the 100th. I have just returned from my trip to Vicksburg, and had a wonderful experience. I would like to give the boys an account of all I have seen at Vicksburg, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, etc. My eyesight is not very good and I have to use a magnifying glass."

Mr. Morrison was one of the official party appointed by Governor Fisher to attend the dedication of the Memorial portrait busts of Hon. Andrew Gregg Curtin, Governor of Pennsylvania from 1861 to 1867, and Major General John Grubbe Parke, Commander of the 9th Army Corps of which the Roundhead Regiment was a part. These memorials were erected at the Vicksburg National Military Park in Commemoration of Pennsylvania's part in the siege of Vicksburg.

Other letters follow:

William M. Horn, (Co. A) Clarysville, Penna.: "Cannot be there—Old age has the grip on me. I was 91 years old my last birthday." Mr. Horn served with the Roundheads from Aug. 1861 to Aug. 1864.

Robert J. Taggart, (Co. A) 1216 Palo Alto St., Pittsburgh, Pa.: "Unable to attend reunion." Mr. Taggart enlisted in 1861 and was discharged in 1865. He was one of the regiment wounded at Cold Harbor, Va., June 2nd, 1864.

John S. Roth, (Co. E) Lamoni, Iowa: "Thank you for the invitation. I am almost 88 years old and my health is very poor so I cannot go very far from home, much as I would like to be at the reunion. Give my kindest regards to our good Col. Maxwell. Tell the Col. I have not forgotten Fort Haskill or Fort Steadman either, or what happened on the 25th of March, 1865. Tell Comrade Mike Markle to write me. I hope you will have a good time."

Almeron Grerett, (Co. E), Hamilton, Ohio: "Am not able to come on account of sickness."

John Shields, (Co. G), Washington, Iowa: "I do not expect to be able to attend the reunion."

Archibald Barnes, (Co. H), Sandy Lake, Pa.: "Sorry but I am not able to attend the reunion."

James W. Clarke, (Co. K), Ventnor, N. J.: "I am too feeble to attend the reunion. Can scarcely move around any more." Mr. Clarke was with the regiment from 1861 to 1864.

David S. Crawford, (Co. K), Beaver Falls, Pa.: "I do not expect to attend reunion."

John M. Weller, (Honorary member of Co. C), Chicago, Ill.: Enclosed please find $1.00 for dues, 100th (Roundhead) Regiment Ass'n. for 1930-1931. I hope you have good weather June 11th and that you have one of the best reunions ever. The members of the 11th are now few in number. Mother expects to be at the reunion."

Rev. Francis E. Reese (Elected as an honorary member while pastor of the Central Pres. church, N. C., Aberdeen, South Dakota: "I only wish I might be there. Best wishes to all."

Letters of regret have been received from a number of surviving Roundheads, who will be unable to attend the annual meeting here on June 11.

Some of these follow:

Prof Robert J. Taggart, Pittsburgh, Pa., Co. A, served 1861 to 1865.

"I would like to go to New Castle, June 11. Hope you have a good time."

"I was the first man enrolled in Company A and I think I am the last living member of the company. Belong to Abe Patterson Post No. 88 G. A. R. Northside, Pittsburgh. We had over 700 members once. Now have 22, and I am the oldest—in my 91st year."

"Well Miss Stevenson, we will all be in our long home very soon. I hope you will have many days yet in your home city, and all happy ones. May our Heavenly Father keep you all safe and take you all to be with his son, our Savior."

From Lorenzo D. Wilgus (Co. A), Sacramento, Calif.

"Your kind and highly appreciated letter received, extending me an invitation to join the remnant of my comrades of the 100th (Roundhead) regiment in commemoration of the valorous deeds performed by our dear old regiment and commingle with them in this 65th reunion."

"Being in my 90th year of age, I feel the fatigue of the long trip and change of climate would unfit me for the occasion. However, I shall be with you on June 11, 1930 in spirit throughout the day and evening and join you all with a prayer and well wishes for success and happiness at this 1930 annual reunion."

"While I will be unable to join you in person at your dinner, I am enclosing $2.00 for a reservation of a ticket or tickets for some worthy soldier or soldiers widow that are deserving of them. Use your own good judgement."

From William H. Huffman, New Port Richey, Florida, (Sgt. Co. D enlisted 1861 and discharged 1865).

"To all friends and descendants of the members of the Roundheads. Many thanks for the invitation to reunion. I have been in Florida ten years. Have fairly good health but cannot use my feet so "double quick."

"My 85th birthday was Nov. 11, 1929. My 17th birthday was observed at Hilton Head, S. C. My 20th was in prison at Salisbury, N. C."

"Col. Maxwell said I never missed a roll call except on duty and never answered to a sick call. Was captured at Weldon R. R. Sunday, August 21, 1864—left 80 odd pounds of Yankee flesh and blood in prison."

"Oh! Those old familiar names—

Gilliland, Fisher, Wagner, Dunlap, and your honored father, James C. Stevenson.

"My thoughts and well wishes are with you all. You can say to the survivors of the Roundheads that we faced a foe that was American even if they not follow the stars and bars."

From Bert E. Stevenson, San Juan, Porto Rico (Honorary Member of Roundhead Association.)

"Invitation to attend the big G. A. R. state encampment in New Castle reached us in this week's mail."

"My but how we would love to be there to help entertain those men, but at this season of the year, it is impossible to get away. We know they are going to have a wonderful time in New Castle."

"New Castle is becoming renowned for her hospitality in the entertainment of conventions and I know the G. A. R. boys are going to enjoy their visit there. We read in The News, where Sheriff Bell was going to fly to New Castle. That is just wonderful."

"I well remember the Roundhead Reunion I attended some years ago. Fred Rentz and I were there and how I did enjoy myself. Please extend my warm sincere regards to all those in attendance."

Scientists, like other folks, make mistakes and now find that changes must be made in the orbit of the new planet. The first plans probably did not provide adequate detours.—The Seattle Times.

SERVING MANY BUSINESSES

Experience of large fleet owners reveals the unusual reliability and economy of the new Ford

A SIGNIFICANT TRIBUTE to the value of the new Ford is found in its increasing use by Federal, state and city governments and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most instances, the Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests of every factor that contributes to good performance—speed, power, safety, comfort, low cost of operation and up-keep, reliability and long life.

Prominent among the companies using the Ford are the Associated Companies of the Bell System, Armour and Company, The Borden Company, Continental Baking Corporation, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, General Electric Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Kellogg Company, Knickerbocker Ice Company, Morton Salt Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, The Procter & Gamble Company, and Swift & Company.

Each of these companies uses a large number of Ford cars and trucks.

The Associated Companies of the Bell System use more than eight thousand.

Modern business moves at a fast pace and it needs the Ford. Daily, in countless ways and places, it helps to speed the production and delivery of the world's goods and extend the useful service of men and companies.

Constant, steady operation over many thousands of miles emphasizes the advantages of the sound design of the Ford car, its high quality of materials, and accuracy in manufacturing. Beneath its graceful lines and beautiful colors there is a high degree of mechanical excellence.

An example of the value built into the Ford is the use of more than twenty ball and roller bearings. They are hidden within the car and you may never see them. Yet they play an important part in satisfactory, economical performance. Their function is similar to the jewels of a fine watch.

Throughout the Ford chassis, a ball or roller bearing is used at every place where it is needed to reduce friction and wear and give smooth, reliable mechanical operation.

At many points, as on the transmission counter-shaft, clutch release, fan and pump shaft, and front drive shaft, these ball and roller bearings are used where less costly types of bearings might be considered adequate.

Additional instances of the high quality built into the Ford are the extensive use of steel forgings, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Rustless Steel, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, and the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part and then, through large production, give it to the public at low cost.

Greenville May Get Post Office Building Soon

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11—An appropriation of $175,000 for a new post office at Greenville is carried in the second deficiency bill reported to the house today by the appropriations committee.

The appropriation would provide for the acquisition of a site and the erection of a basement and one-story brick-faced, stone-trim, and fireproof building to provide 6,680 square feet of floor space for the post office department and 500 square feet for the civil service.

Don't feel too inferior. The smartest of lawyers seems dumb in a group discussing fertilizer values.

Power Merger Being Planned

Pennsylvania-Ohio Company Is Part Of Proposed Merger

WILL BE KNOWN AS OHIO EDISON CO

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 11.—Application was filed with the Ohio public utilities commission in Columbus Tuesday seeking authority to consolidate Northern Ohio Power & Light company, the Akron Steam Heating company, the Ohio Edison company, the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power & Light company and the London Light & Power company.

All these companies are operating public utilities in the state of Ohio and are engaged in furnishing light and power, steam heat and transportation services in the cities of Akron, Youngstown and Springfield and other municipalities located in Summit, Cuyahoga, Medina, Stark, Tuscarawas, Portage, Mahoning, Trumbull, Columbiana, Ashtabula, Champaign, Logan, Madison, Union and Clark counties. Under the agreement of consolidation, copy of which was filed with the application, the electric and steam heating business of the above companies will be united into one company to be known as Ohio Edison company.

The consolidated company will assume all the bonds and other indebtedness of the participating companies and will issue its preferred stock share for like dividend rate to present holders of the preferred stock of the respective constituent companies.

The Commonwealth & Southern corporation which owns all of the stock of the constituent corporations will, upon consummation of the consolidation, pay $15,000,000 in cash for 300,000 additional shares of the common stock. This sum will be available for the company's requirement and further development.

The petition also seeks approval for the consolidated company to acquire the power station of Ohio River Edison company located near Toronto, Jefferson county, Ohio, and the transmission lines with sub-station equipment of Ohio River Transmission company.

Application is also made for authority for the new company to convey to Akron Transportation company, Northern Ohio Interurban company and Canton Traction company, its tracks, cars, buses and equipment used in furnishing city, suburban and interurban transportation, all the stock of these companies to be owned by the consolidated company.

When consolidation becomes effective, directors are to elect permanent officers of the company, its subsidiaries and decide other corporate matters.

Concerning the proposed consolidation, J. T. Harrington, president of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power & Light company, made the following statement:

"Unification of the electric properties as proposed, and grouping of the transportation systems, is a logical development and should prove beneficial to the communities served as the companies themselves.

"The territory served by the various companies will undoubtedly grow substantially during the next five or ten years and steps must be taken in advance to provide the necessary facilities in order to meet the greater demands for service.

"The investment position of the preferred stockholders will be materially improved by the $15,000,000 cash which Ohio Edison company will receive from the common stock sale.

"Obviously, a large company with a modern corporate and financial structure operating in numerous communities where industrial activities are varied is in a better position to finance the cost of additions and improvements than a smaller company operating in a more restricted territory. Various economies incidental to larger scale operation also can be effected and greater stability given to the securities. These factors will tend to keep down operating costs thus providing the best service at a reasonable price.

"Ohio Edison company will have an aggregate installed electric generating capacity of 435,500 horsepower, 920 miles of transmission lines and 10,845 miles of distribution lines, serving 176,700 electric customers. The territory served is one of the most highly developed prosperous and rapidly United States."

Says Mosquitoes Are Fond Of Blue

(International News Service) PARIS, June 11.—Avoid blue if you don't want the mosquitoes to get you, say some well-known French entomologists, who have recently discovered that the summer pest is very much attracted by this shade. In fact, this is the mosquito's favorite color and he will hover around it wherever it is to be found.

On the other hand, he has a great dislike for yellow and will never go near it if he can avoid it. This, then, should be worn whenever possible if one is near water where there are likely to be mosquitoes and a bedroom decorated in this shade should be free from the nuisance.

Modern Milkman Uses Airplane

(International News Service) DAVIS, Cal., June 11.—Even the old milk route has gone up in the air and delivery is being made from Chicago to the University of Agriculture here.

But this just happens in rare cases, such as when Dr. C. L. Roadhouse of the college wants a sample of milk inoculated with a certain bacteria sent by Professor O. F. Hunkeler of Chicago for use in experimenting with the preparation of cultured butter-milk. Then it arrives in its perfect condition as if it had been carried two miles by "Dobbin" and his cart.

The trout pulled Mrs. Day in the lake but she held on to her pole until she and the fish were rescued by her cousin, Ray Saver-coul.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

If farming as a profitable business leaves something to be desired, certainly it is not because of lack of trained scientific research work. We have been getting a pretty heavy dose of research in the last 15 years—I mean all of us—the world in general—and it is fair to say that some marvelous results have come out of the great research laboratories.

But no industry, not even the big automobile or chemical concerns, is any better supplied with scientific research men than is agriculture.

The great department of agriculture at Washington, largely a research organization, heads the list of course. Forty-eight state departments or commissions on agriculture do research work in varying degrees. Nearly sixty state experiment stations and the large staffs on an equal number of agricultural colleges are busy on research problems day in and day out and year after year.

Not only that, but all the scientific work being done by the other civilized nations of the world—and there is an immense lot of it—is brought to the United States and studied by our agricultural scientists.

One naturally asks, what in the world do all these trained men and women work at? What on earth can remain to be discovered in the growing of crops and animals?

I had occasion the other day to look over some progress reports of scientific work being done for the farmer. Besides a great many simple and understandable tests and experiments being made, here are a few that may surprise you:

The influence of manganiferous

soils on the accuracy of the quinhydrone electrode.

Cryptic types in Datura due to chromosomal interchange.

Entomogenous members of the Entomophthoraceae in artificial culture.

Enzymes of pythiactis citrophthora Sm. and Sm.

I am reminded forcibly of the epigram that describes the specialist as the man who knows more and more about less and less.

If we ask further whether such investigations are any good, and whether farmers can profit by them, the answer has to be yes, in both cases.

It is a far cry from the quinhydrone electrode to a field of alfalfa in bloom, but there is a definite connection between them. Farmer may follow the teachings of the school or doubtfully. Advanced methods on experiment plots often seem to stop short at the line fences.

But agriculture in every one of its branches does advance. It is quite unlike the agriculture of sixty years ago. And there is reason to think that the cryptic types in Datura may be of enormous importance to the farmer of sixty years hence.

BREAKFAST ROOM IN COUNTRY IS DELIGHTFUL

This charming breakfast room in the country which overlooks a garden and in which the table is spread before the casement windows, is furnished with a butterfly table, Windsor chairs and braided rug. The floor is painted green, and the woodwork creamy ivory, matching the background of the wallpaper, which is patterned with conventionalized spring flowers. The maplewood corner cupboard matches the other furniture and is filled with early American pottery and pewter. The draperies are soft green over inner ones of cream silk. The lamp is an old-fashioned oil which has been electrified and given a parchment shade with a Godey print on it. The design was selected for Central Press by Elizabeth Russell, decoration editor for The American Home Magazine.

Plague Of Indifference Still To Be Combatted

"The newspapers have been carrying accounts of the plague of locusts which at the present time is infesting the land of Egypt. And there are two interesting facts connected with it. First, the world of nature is not given to high speed changes; and second, the resourcefulness of man, on the other hand, has developed an amazing ingenuity. So it comes to pass that while there have been recurrent plagues of locusts in Egypt since Biblical days, present day methods of fighting them with barriers, ditches and gasoline are incomparably superior to the old offensive which was limited to prayers alone. And this situation may be logically compared to the human body," said Doctor Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, today.

"Smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid fever and other contagious diseases, while still sporadically plaguing the human race, have been rendered much less dangerous, and in some instances practically impotent, by scientific counter-attacks. The rapid advance in bacteriological and medical science has led to that.

"And while it is quite true that this happy situation obtains, it is also painfully a fact that a major plague still exists, against which science has as yet made insufficient headway. It is the plague of indifference.

"This modern age, relying rightly but entirely too much upon the laboratory to fight its battles, generates a foolish indifference to its own health welfare. This results in a near-criminal disregard of the laws of right living on the part of many people with the consequences being indicated in half-alive bodies, impaired hearts, delayed diagnosis and other conditions over which the individual has more or less personal supervision.

"It follows that science alone can not fight the devastating influences of life. It can, and is, accomplishing a magnificently effective job. Until however, the average man and woman and through them the child, can be made to understand that all the research laboratories in the world, and all the wonderful advances in medicine and sanitation will be of little avail, if a properly ordered life based on the laws of nature is not observed, not until then will the modern human being attain in quality of health and in length of years, what he actually should experience.

"Therefore, kill the plague of indifference in matters of personal health. Right and sensible living alone can accomplish it."

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters intended for this column must be signed with name and address of writer.

Pittsburgh, Pa. June 10, 1930.

To the Editor of "The News," New Castle, Pa.

Dear Sir:

In connection with the Annual Convocation of the Civil War Veterans, now being held in your city, I am handing you herewith some verses which I cut out of a newspaper several years ago, but which I feel are very appropriate, and if consistent with newspaper rules (they are not copyrighted) perhaps you can make use of them on this occasion.

Yours truly, G. A. Strieb.

THE VETERANS.

Every year they're marching slower,
Every year they're stooping lower,
Every year the lifting music stirs
The hearts of older men;
Every year the flags above them
Seem to bend and bleed and love them
As if grieving for the future when
They'll never march again!

Every year that day draws nearer,
Every year the truth is clearer
That the men who saved the nation
From the severance of the sword
Soon must pass away forever
From the scene of their endeavor,
Soon must answer to the roll call
Of the angel of the Lord.

Every year with dwindling number,
Loyal still to those that slumber,
Forth they march to where already
Many have found peace at last.
And they place the fairest blossoms
O'er the silent mould'ring bosoms
Of the valiant friends and comrades
Of the battles of the past.

Every year grow dimmer, duller
Tattered flag and faded color;
Every year the hands that bear
Them find a harder task to do.
And the eyes that only brightened
When the blaze of battle lightened,
Like the tattered flags they follow,
Are grown dim and faded, too.

Every year we see them passing,
Every year we watch them passing,
Scarcely pausing in our hurry after
Pleasure, after gain.

But the battle flags above them
Seem to bend and bleed and love them,
And through all the lifting music
Sounds an undertone of pain!

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Readers Aid Dr. Myers By Letters

Writes a mother from Milwaukee: "Here's my mother's and children's idea!"

"As you know convalescing children are supposed to drink quite an amount of water, oftentimes they do not care to do this. I have found that by placing the water in a small thermos bottle and setting it on a stand with a glass, by the bed, the children enjoy helping themselves. As the water will keep cool for hours it will save many steps and coaxings on your part to get them to drink water."

Excellent, for the child also learns independence.

Here's another from Wisconsin:

"When the kitchen table oilcloth cover wears out, I always cut out the best part and cover the children's school books, as the cover is sure to get finger prints on it. This oilcloth cover can be washed off, leaving the books fresh and sweet looking, and gives me a better chance to sell them or trade in at the end of a semester."

The next letter gives no address and is signed "An Admirer":

"Dear Dr. Myers:

"Appropos shielding children from punishment I say go to it, provided you are not morbid about it. Take all that really comes, but avoid all you honestly and fairly can avoid for them. When things are truly in their path don't turn aside for them (taking the children out of the neighborhood when a funeral takes place was going out your path and a little morbid, I think) but don't turn out of your regular way to meet them."

"As for children being stoical and unsympathetic—that is as it should be, they don't understand—their emotional life is as yet dormant. I remember distinctly when my emotional self awoke—it was the first time (there have been many others) when I fell a little in love. I remember vividly going to a play that evening and realizing for the first time what it all meant. Tears came to my eyes for the first time in my life as I realized situations. Perhaps with others the awakening is not so sudden, but it all comes at a time past childhood.

"I say don't be morbid about either shielding or exposing a child. Take it all in your stride—don't be too conscientious."

I am always glad to receive personal help and to pass along any good suggestions to other parents. Many fathers and mothers have discovered ways of guiding the children happily, getting them to adjust themselves without emotional disturbance. Some have found clever ways of stimulating children to create and to amuse themselves. Please send accounts of such success. I shall pass them along. Our readers will welcome them most heartily.

Fights City When Offered A Raise

CHICAGO, Ill., June 11.—For sheer honesty and personal frankness Nick M. Keller, Waukegan Commissioner of Streets, must deserve some sort of prize.

Today Keller is glowing over the battle he has been waging here against the City Council that his wages might not be raised $1,000 a year.

"My current annual salary of $3,200 is all I'm worth," Keller declared, "and I don't want a penny more."

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box, 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

Would a person jumping from an airplane several thousand feet up become unconscious before reaching the ground if the parachute failed to open?

The popular belief that a person falling from a great altitude will be killed or rendered unconscious before reaching the ground has been exploded by army flyers, says the war department. The army air corps experimental department at Wright Field can definitely state that a man falling from any altitude with a parachute pack attached never attains a velocity of greater than 118 miles per hour and does not lose consciousness.

A dummy of the size and weight of a 180-pound man, with a service parachute attached and unopened, attained, it was found, a velocity of 118 miles per hour within a period of eleven seconds, and after falling 1,200 feet in the quiet air, but from that time on no increase in speed was attained.

How can a bill vetoed by the president be passed over his veto?

This can be done by securing a two-thirds majority in both houses of congress in favor of the bill.

Where are the United States mints situated?

The mints are at Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver. The New Orleans and Carson City (Nev.) mints are conducted as assay offices. United States assay offices are situated also at New York City, Boise Idaho; Helena, Montana; Seattle, Wash., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

What is regarded as the highest temperature a sick person can have and live?

When the temperature reaches 106 degrees in man the term hyperpyrexia (excessive fever) is applied. The patient's condition is regarded as serious, and if the temperature exceeds 107 to 108 degrees death results except in some cases of sun or heatstrokes. Occasionally, just before death, the temperature will rise to 110 to 112 degrees.

Where does the name Rockefeller originate?

The Rockefeller Family association says that the name Rockefeller is originally from the French Roquefeuille, meaning, literally, rock leaf. The ancestral home of the family is the Chateau Roquefeuille, in France, in the town of Creysseils. It was so named because the rocks in that vicinity show a peculiar leaf formation which is the result of petrification. A branch of the family comes from the Palatinate.

Prisoners Seek Poetry Instruction

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 11.—Stone walls do not a prison make—Not when the Muses of Spring fill from pastoral glades into the draft confines of San Quentin prison.

All of which was proven today when A. J. Shuder, new San Quentin educational director, announced that more than forty convicts have applied for special instruction in versification.

Shuder conferring with Vierling Kersey state educational director considered the request favorably, and so the poetry urge in San Quentin will be fostered.

Aviation and seamanship were the other two special studies asked by prisoners, Shuder declared.

"Three hundred inmates have asked for aviation training—ground classes of course," Shuder explained. "And we have a Yale graduate prisoner ready to act as instructor."

An Annapolis graduate, also an inmate, will teach a class of more than a hundred convicts in seamanship, with plenty of teacher material available in the prison for other courses, it was announced.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

"So old fashioned girls are bundles of conceit are they, parading their virtues and wearing that holier-than-thou look?"

"Stand by, you 'Bachelor From Indiana,' a Miss from Detroit wants to say a few words to you on this subject. You say that men pick vamps because they don't make them feel like poor worms, while good girls have an idea they are plaster angels, and better than any men."

"I wonder if he knows," says Miss Detroit, "that girls who flirt in offices don't hold their jobs long, and believe me I have to hold mine. I was fired once for flirting, and I learned my lesson. Now I am walking around looking superior and holier-than-thou."

"Another thing, too, I was foolish enough to let myself care for one of these bachelors, but I was determined that he shouldn't find out until I was certain he cared for me. Therefore I did my best to hide my feelings beneath a mask of reserve. And he, instead of trying to win me, left me cold."

"Miss Allard, men of today know nothing of a woman's heart and they don't try to understand women. Maybe if they were not so faint hearted about proposing they would all be happily married by now and wouldn't have time to heap injustices upon the heads of girls who already have more than they can stand. I certainly would appreciate your giving this 'Indiana Bachelor' a few of these kind words."

"Miss Twenty One."

But Miss Twenty One, the bachelor didn't say anything about vamping men in business offices, during business hours. Mixing love with business doesn't result in success for either. "Indiana Bachelor" said that men fall for vamps because, while they admire the old fashioned girls, they are too uptight-uptight—or words to that effect.

You are right, the girl who mixes her flirting with business finds herself out of a job. The bachelor didn't advocate vamping, he merely wanted to discourage the high and mighty attitude of the girl who, just because she is good, acts the sugar angel.

As for the bachelor you loved and lost, I'll tell both you the Indiana bachelor something I know to be true. When a man loves a girl he doesn't let anything stop him. He stands outside her window till he sees the light go out, and does other equally silly things. He sits up till almost morning writing her love notes, and every time anybody opens her front door he falls in.

The idea that men in love need pushing is absurd.

Lions Hear Of Ghandi's Power

Revolutionist Chief Termed Most Dominating Figure In World Today

RABBI MENKES IS SPEAKER TUESDAY

Characterizing him as a man more powerful than the President of the United States or even the mighty kings of Europe—in fact the most outstanding figure in all the world—Rabbi J. B. Menkes of Temple Israel, speaking before the Lions club at the Elks club Tuesday, discussed the possibilities of Mahatma Ghandi, leader of India's revolutionary movement against the British.

"To the man who can command the widespread respect of 350 millions of people, win their confidence and continue to hold it, I believe can go the title of the most outstanding figure in the world," Rabbi Menkes declared.

While he gave no opinion of his own as to the possible outcome of Ghandi's effort to bring about independence from England's sovereignty, Rabbi Menkes did comment on what others have predicted. He praised Ghandi for his courage and evident will to win.

The Lions balloted for their new officers during the meeting the result of which will not be announced until next Tuesday. The following nominees were voted upon:

President, A. H. Bartlett and Earl Ramsey; first vice president, Earl Ramsey; John R. Ellison and Dr. T. M. Shaffer; second vice president, Anthony Marino, A. M. Shumaker and Dr. T. M. Shaffer; third vice president, A. M. Shumaker, George Smith and Anthony Marino; tall twister, Red Williams, A. J. Rees and W. H. Hodgkinson; lion tamer, Red Williams and W. H. Hodgkinson; sky pilot, the Rev. G. S. Bennett; directors, to name three: Earl Book, W. L. Pander, B. K. Thacker, George L. Smith and B. M. Rogers.

NATION GAINS IN ABILITY TO SOLVE PUZZLES

(International News Service)
JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 11.—The intelligence and deductive ability of the nation has increased during the past several years, if solutions of picture and cross-word puzzles may be taken as an indication, according to a study just completed by the picture puzzle committee of the Bond Electric corporation. The company has just completed another picture puzzle contest which attracted more than 350,000 answers. Wayne F. Koppes, architectural designer of Cleveland Heights, O., won first prize of $2,000 for the best solutions to the six puzzles offered by the company.

Bert C. McGilvay, 16-year-old high school student of Council Bluffs, Ia., won second prize of $1,000 and Floy W. Lash of San Francisco third prize of $500. Prizes ranging from $100 to $5 were awarded to 1,062 additional contestants. The picture puzzles each represented a particular quality of various electrical products such as radio batteries, tubes and flashlights.

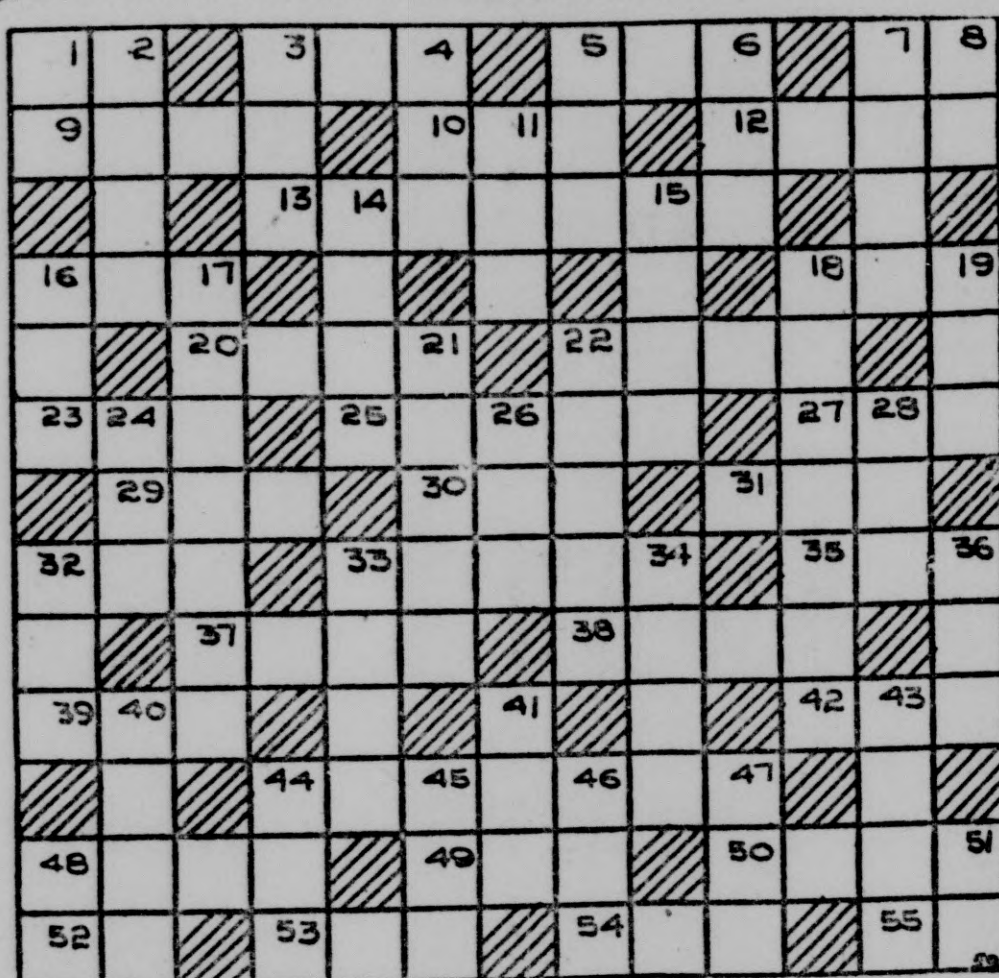

High school students, as a class, displayed greater deductive ability than any other group of contestants, according to the committee. A comparative study of answers received in last year's contest with those received this year showed a greater percentage of almost correct answers in the 1936 contest. Award of prizes will take place in the various cities where the prize winners reside about June 11.

Peter's Adventures

MRS. FLORENCE VINCENT

BROWN BEETLE'S WARNING

Peter struck first and was sorry afterward. The body of mosquito lay upon the ground and in spite of the mean tricks she had played upon him, Peter wished he had not struck so hard.

"I am afraid I have finished Mosquito's fun forever, Brown Beetle," said he. "I did not mean to. After all she was only following her nature in stinging me. I meant only to frighten her so that she would go away and leave."

Brown Beetle didn't feel at all badly over the accident. As usual he chuckled.

"To be sure you have done for Mosquito, boy. And a good deed I call it! She was the pestiest insect that has hatched from the egg-raft—always buzzing around and poking her nasty little self into other people's business. And not content with being a busy-body she made trouble wherever she was—thought it was smart to hurt folks. Now some of her family are pleasant as can be. I've no objection to them at all. But Grey Gnat and her tribe are disagreeable."

"Grey Gnat?" Peter wondered if he had heard right. "Why I always liked gnats. I thought she was a Mosquito!"

"So she was and a Grey Gnat as well. The two are one, dear fellow. As I said some Gnats are all right but she happened to belong to the tribe that isn't. By the way, I wonder what her relatives will say and do when they find her?"

"What could they say or do?" demanded Peter.

"Plenty!" Brown Beetle nodded. "Nothing makes the Mosquito tribe angrier than to come upon one of their members injured. They buzz and they sting. Say, if you think one Mosquito can make you uncomfortable, what do you think hundreds of Mosquitoes could go to you? You better take yourself off if you don't want to find out. If the Mosquitoes should arrive and find you, nothing could save you from their fury."

"I AM AFRAID I HAVE FINISHED MOSQUITO'S FUN FOREVER, BROWN BEETLE," SAID HE.

Install Memorial Tablet At Westminster College

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., June 11.—A memorial tablet to the Westminster College students who served in the world war has been installed on the east wall of the Memorial Tower room in Old Main Memorial. The memorial, authorized by the board of trustees of the college in 1919, just after the close of the war, was not installed sooner because the authorization of the board stated that a suitable seat for the memorial should be constructed on the campus.

This bronze tablet, the first memorial in the tower since the completion of the new building, is unique in that it covers the recognition of those who served in the war and returned home as well as those who were killed. The tablet reads: "Westminster Memorial. Dedicated to those students of the college who served their country during the world war, 1918-1919. Sacred to the memory of those who died: Robert C. Dornon, J. Wilbur Randolph, J. Clifford Richards."

These three students of the college were all of the classes of 1918 and 1919. Robert Collins Dornon, 19, New Alexandria, was killed in an air raid on a hospital July 23, 1918. J. Wilbur Randolph, 18, Ellwood City, was killed in action October 4, 1918. The American Legion Post at Ellwood City is named for Randolph. J. Clifford Richards, 19, Wilkensburg, died in camp on November 15, 1918. All three young men were given posthumous graduation.

In addition to this memorial in the tower room, five bronze tablets have been placed in the communion table in the chapel, designating donors of memorial windows in the chapel wing. Five other bronze tablets, designating donors of other windows to the chapel are now being installed. These tablets, together with one in the tower room at the light switch to designate that the lantern was given by the Westminster Women's club, will become more and more points of interest for alumni in years to come.

Authority Discusses Cancer

Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, professor of clinical surgery, Johns Hopkins university, famous surgeon and international authority on cancer, will be the guest speaker for the Lawrence County Medical society, June 13th at the New Castle Field Club.

Dr. Bloodgood has written a series of articles for the press on cancer, the first of which follows and one will appear in these columns each day for five days.

ARTICLE VII Cancer Of Bone

We are beginning to get some very encouraging figures. Before the discovery of the X-rays, no cases of cancer of the bone were cured by amputation or any other treatment, because only the X-ray will detect malignant disease of bone in time for cure by operation or radiation.

The people had to be told of the value of the X-rays. In 1921 the chances of a cure after an amputation of a limb were less than 5 per cent. In 1929 it was more than 35 per cent. There has been a tremendous change for the better by the wide dissemination of correct information. Children must be taught not to conceal pain in bone or joint. Whenever there is pain or swelling near a bone or joint, or a limb, or any loss of function, beware of typhoid fever in children and adults have made osteomyelitis a rarer disease. The immediate detection of infantile paralysis and lumber puncture and the treatment by convalescent serum have reduced the crippling from this disease more than 50 per cent. The eradication of this crippling disease rests upon the discovery of its cause, prevention and treatment in the research laboratories of medical science. Now we are reducing the fearful mortality of cancer of the bone by simply telling the people through the daily press and other means of communication of the importance of an immediate X-ray examination the moment a child or adult has the least symptoms or sign of trouble in the bone.

Speech doubters was invented by some chap who figured the others would do the work if he acted important enough.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Meet Mr. Hayes

By Claire Wesson

ALL day the temperature hovered 'round 98; a myriad nagging things had happened at the office; his room was an airless box and . . . Mr. Hayes swore. Truthfully, Mr. Hayes was a timid soul, so his oath was mild and dispirited. But it helped.

Meet Mr. Hayes! A brown-eyed youth, standing 5 feet 10 in his immaculate hose, lean-jawed, a serious mouth, irritating hair which broke into a wave unless closely watched; a conservative in all things. Given to blue serge suits and dark ties.

Mr. Hayes was perfectly aware of the fact that he had abilities, but a childhood spent in a small, adult circle, and a youth devoted to an invalid mother, had served to dam up his natural outlets and now that he was free and alone, it seemed too late.

There was Miss Curtis, for instance. Meet Miss Curtis! A pliant nose, demure mouth and guileless blue eyes; a shingle bob; staggering blue brief frocks and slim silken legs which knew every complicated maze of the Charleston; Miss Curtis, who worked at the next desk; who was constantly surrounded with the badinage and attention of visiting salesmen, and who only at rare intervals turned her careless gaze on Mr. Hayes. And yet . . .

And there was Mr. Collins. Meet . . . No, don't bother! You'd probably dislike him. The boss. As a matter of fact, I don't like him myself, and the only reason I brought him in was because he held in the hollow of the suit box which had been Job which, save for the fact that he was a Timid Soul, would belong to Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes swore. And contemplated with growing horror the contents of the suit box which had been lying across his bed awaiting his arrival. For, instead of the new suit, conservatively blue and double-breasted and sane, this was an atrocity in the palest of tans, soft nose, demure mouth and guileless blue eyes; a shingle bob; staggering blue brief frocks and slim silken legs which knew every complicated maze

It held everything: interest, applause, admiration; it exalted the bosom of the transformed Mr. Hayes and then, with sudden confidence he accepted it as his due; and his bow was everything gracious and—aloof. He moved on; the eyes of Miss

Steele followed, and as he turned the corner of the staircase: "Oh, Mr. Hayes!" He turned slowly. "I was just wondering. . . . Won't you join us tonight for a little ride? . . . My brother's car . . . just out to the Tumble Inn." Mr. Hayes considered; shook a regretful head.

"I'm really sorry," he said. "Some other night . . . ?" Really, his smile was charming. Strange, Miss Steele considered, she had never known . . . and then he was gone. Behold Mr. Hayes' parade downtown: a growing confidence under a battery of feminine glances. By the time he had reached the corner where the huge pile of the Amalgamated reared itself, timidly had fled.

He glanced about. Miss Curtis close to the desk. Mr. Collins drew his brindle eyebrows together.

"About the Miami office, Mr. Collins, the outer office beheld Miss Curtis laughing up into the eyes of the younger of the salesmen; crossed the office with a swift stride rather neatly he pocketed the salesman and placed himself before the insouciant Miss Curtis.

"Not now, not now," he said irritably. "As a matter of fact, Mr. Hayes, I have Trumbull in mind. Something banged under Miss Curtis' hand.

"Trumbull be hanged," said Mr. Hayes, still pleasantly. "That's my job. And you know it. I can run circles around Trumbull as far as that job is concerned and I want it. And what's more, I intend to have it. Or you can get somebody else to fill my place here!"

For a minute Mr. Collins purpled with rage; met the pleasant brown gaze of Mr. Hayes and hesitated; then, strangely enough, he smiled! Smiled broadly, threw back his head and roared. He ended his mirth on a sudden gasp, rose and held out his hand to the quiet astonished Mr. Hayes.

"Well, really, Mr. Hayes," he said amiably. "Perhaps you're right! As a matter of fact"—he smiled again—"yes, you're right! The job is yours." Mr. Hayes rose abruptly; the ground swayed a little beneath him. "And"—the Boss flicked open a cigar humidor—"a cigar, Mr. Hayes! Come in this afternoon and we'll go into things."

The door closed after Mr. Hayes. Cigar in his mouth he contemplated

The Cradle Snatcher

By Phil Moore

THE Great Detective trembled very dull work. And there was a with the certain knowledge big job on down at the swimming that his golden-haired client's hole—the lifeless bodies of six cats

Funny how someone coming on the scene suddenly, spoiled things. His golden-haired client vanished and in her place sat Ermintrude, the freak pumpkin his father paid him two cents a day to keep an eye on. Mr. McWhortle intended to exhibit Ermintrude at the county fair, and if Buzzy would marry her. Buzzy was horribly in love. But mamma Brown, who lived across the street and who also exhibited, had evil designs on her.

Reggie had been detecting on the pumpkin for a week and nothing had happened, with the exception of the afternoon when old Byather leered across the fence and snorted contemptuously at Ermintrude. At that, she was worth a snort, for she grew in lumps in all directions, as though she could not make up her mind which side to expand on, and sent out experimental bunches here and there.

The Great Detective sighed heavily, for detecting on Ermintrude was yellow. Reggie had liked her right face on the pillow. It was the Cradle Snatcher, all right. But such a changed Cradle Snatcher. "She used disguises, too," thought Reggie wonderingly, as his eye caught the gleam of her beautiful golden hair on the bureau. There were the little yellow curls over the ears that he had seen Buzzy kissing. Over the back of a chair was her short blue dress. On the floor stretched a pair of flesh silk stockings. The Great Detective's eyes blazed. His breath came in little gasps. He had an idea!

It was almost 6 o'clock before the Great Detective admitted that the dead cat mystery had him stumped. He was hurrying home with an abstracted frown on his face when he saw Buzzy swinging up Elm street in front of him. Reggie broke into a cold sweat and then broke into a run. There would be the dickens to pay if Buzzy got home first!

"Hey, there!" shouted Buzzy, as the Great Detective shot past him. Reggie increased his speed desperately. And Buzzy, thinking it was a game, started after him, caught him and ran up the steps with Reggie in his arms.

"Everything's on the table," said mamma, looking at Buzzy kind of mad, as she had ever since she had seen the Cradle Snatcher. "Where's Suzanne?" asked Buzzy, determinedly cheerful. "I saw something that looked like her sprawling out in the pumpkin," answered mamma.

"In the pumpkin patch?" repeated Buzzy, puzzled, staring out the window. From the house he could see the Cradle Snatcher's golden hair gleaming in the green leaves, above a glimpse of her blue dress. He started towards the garden. "Wait, wait, Buzzy," pleaded the Great Detective, following as well as a feller could whose knee had turned to water. "I gotta explain!"

But Buzzy was staring blankly at Ermintrude's knobby head one side of which was resplendent with Suzanne's beautiful golden hair. The golden hair in his hand. "Well, of all things," began Mrs. McWhortle. But she stopped short after a look at Buzzy.

"Take this up to Suzanne," said Buzzy harshly. "I'm going to camp with Bob Merrifield for a week or two. You can tell her. I'll leave white face as he examined the golden back stairs two at a time.

"Puppy love," sighed Mrs. McWhortle. Reggie looked around for Pat, but he wasn't in sight. "You're a good boy, Reggie," she added, patting the Great Detective on the head. This was even more surprising. He had expected the hair brush.

"Is Muffler getting a pretty fair salary?"

"Oh, yes; enough to keep body and soul and touring car together."

"That married couple in the next flat are having a terrible argument. I don't hear his voice at all." "No; it's the regular family argument."

pocket for future reference. Homer deserved to be taught a lesson.

In pursuance of the idea which had been slowly growing within her since Homer first appeared, she tipped into the front parlor and stopped short. The safe was standing open, fairly taken apart by expert fingers. In sudden relief she remembered the little packet safe in her trunk upstairs.

"They were thieves, Hilda," said Homer, dully, "and I trusted them." She looked at him. She realized all at once how much this meant to him, this betrayal of trust. His face looked gray and old in the half light. She laid a gentle hand on his arm.

"I played a trick on you, Homer," she whispered, "and I'm sorry. Everything is safe upstairs in my trunk." She choked suddenly. "And you know, Homer, I like to have people come. It kinda keeps me from getting lonesome."

"Have you any complaint to make?" asked the prison visitor. "Yes, I have," replied the life convict. "There ain't nearly enough exits from this place."

"They're—they're gone, Hilda," he said, avoiding her eye. Mrs. Morse tied on her apron. "Who are gone?"

"The two men you didn't like, I heard a noise and came down. And—Hilda, they've robbed the safe!" The deep hurt in his tone made Hilda wince.

"Gone!" she repeated.

Unwelcome Guests

By Clyde Weldon

MRS. MORSE wearily leaned to the open window. There was little enough coolness anywhere this midsummer weather.

"Thank goodness, the work's done! Two more weeks of rest before the peaches will be ripe." She peered down the road. "Bout time for Homer—" The words died in her throat, as a rickety little car came into view around the bend. "People! Homer's brought visitors again!"

She watched as the five came toward the house. Four extra people to cook for in this weather. And strangers, too!

Homer's hearty voice boomed in the hall. "Come in, folks! Mrs. Morse'll be glad to see you. Kinda lonesome for her out here in the country." Lonesome, with 12 work-horse to the day!

He spoke to his wife hurriedly,

"Met these folks in town, Hilda. Never been here before. Seemed a shame to send 'em to a hotel, so I brought 'em right along." With angry, hostile eyes, Hilda surveyed the newcomers. A young man and his wife, quite evidently honey-mooning. Her eyes softened as she looked at them, but her lips set grimly at the appearance of the other two. Men, probably on the sunny side of 40, who just escaped being shabby.

"Bums!" was her inward and inelegant verdict, as she stalked from the heat of the hall to the greater heat of the kitchen to prepare supper. "If only he'd bring his friends!" she said to herself, fiercely, as she had said many times before. But I never would't mind friends. But I never undertook to run a free hotel for the other two! They might rob and murder us, for all you know."

Homer shook his head comfortably. "Oh, no, they're nice people. I know they're nice people." And they probably were all right, reflected his wife, grudgingly, though Homer had far too much faith in people. She had tried in many ways to cope with this problem. Once she had left Homer, refusing to get even one meal for six strangers. Homer had done the work himself bunglingly, and had come after her with tears in his eyes and promises on his lips. It had been almost a month before he brought the next guests.

Supper was not a success. Hilda certainly might pass for a burglar's tool. And in that moment her eyes were alight with sudden inspirations. She slipped the metal object into her

The Daily Tread

By Monte Darrell

IT was past 5 o'clock in the afternoon and people were beginning to return from their work. From his wheelchair in the basement living room, Michael could hear the steady "tap-tap" of footsteps on the sidewalk above him. By pushing himself forward he could even see the shoes that made the sounds, and it amused him in his invalidism to watch for familiar footwear and to weave fanciful dreams around each pair of boots.

Almost daily he recognized the same gay, impractical sandals of the flappers and shopgirls; the heavy, thick-soled brogans of outdoor men and teamsters, and the expensive, highly polished oxfords of successful business men. Then there was a dainty pair of blonde kid slippers that Mi had watched for more closely than the others.

They were a queer little complex, these slippers because the padding of the sturdy, square heels belied the frailty of the butterfly haws and outwork. Michael had never seen the face of the wearer, but being a sentimentalist, he loved her and looked up to the owner, both literally and figuratively speaking.

As has already been said, Michael was usually amused and entertained by the passing parade of boots, but tonight they seemed to mock and chide him for his helplessness. Hopelessly, he pounded his disabled knee with a clenched, angry fist, while the incessant "tap-tap" continued overhead.

"The daily tread in pursuit of its daily bread," he murmured bitterly. "Active fortunate beings and probably dissatisfied with their lot!" At that moment the blonde kid slippers passed his window, else his soliloquy would not have ended. Michael straightened in his chair, to obtain a better view and, to his surprise, the slippers turned into the very apartment where he was living. He heard the outer door open and shut, and in another second, an excited young girl had stepped into his presence. Like her slippers, she was pretty and gay, yet dependable. "Please excuse me for coming in trouble is trivial compared to yours. Did you have an accident?"

"Yes," Michael admitted. "About a year ago I prevented a child from being struck by a truck. I myself was hit by the car and I've been helpless ever since. The doctors say I am incurable."

"I'm so sorry," sympathized the girl. Then, consulting her watch. "Well, I must go. I think the man has gone now."

Michael was so pleased by their meeting that he decided to take a long chance and attempt to keep her a while longer. Taking his courage in both hands, he said:

"I know I presume, but won't you stay and have supper with me? My Mother will be home soon—she call again, but Michael was not prepared to receive her the very next afternoon. She did not come alone, but was accompanied by a fine-looking gentleman, whom she introduced as Dr. Ray.

The doctor extended a cordial hand to the astonished Michael, and exclaimed heartily. "Well, well, so you are the chap Miss Martha has been raving about all morning! With your permission, I'd like to examine your injury. I feel sure you can be helped."

"I am afraid it is impossible to help me, sir," stammered Michael. "Impossible!" repeated the genial doctor. "Nothing is impossible, unless we think it is. I wish you could see the soldier-lads I've put on slippers, to match her bridal costume."

Several days later he performed another successful operation.

Michael's road to recovery was a long and painful one, but with Martha to cheer him, he was soon convalescing in his own basement living-room. The daily tread of footsteps ceased to taunt him; instead, it seemed to stand for a vast army of happy men and women, marching toward a brilliant future, and some day he would be a part of that army.

And about Martha's slippers. At Michael's request, she wore them until they were actually shabby. In fact, she wore them until they were replaced by a pair of white satin slippers, to match her bridal costume.

Was Dempsey Doped For Tunney Fight?

Washington Times Prints Story By New York Sport Editor That Dempsey Doped Self

Story Says That Dempsey Was Under Severe Nervous Strain And Took Laudanum

—an intestinal disorder. He slept but little, owing to the annoyance of this disorder, and worried constantly. On the night day there was no real improvement. He passed up a chance to call a doctor, remembering that somewhere he had laudanum in his kit and that laudanum was something which would check his particular ailment. He didn't know laudanum contained the deadening 10 per cent of opium. All he knew was that a small dose of it aided him in similar predicaments.

Dull and Languid
Just before leaving Atlantic City on fight night he got out the bottle. Instead of taking one dose, he took three, wanting to make sure the cure would be effective. No one in the camp knew that he had done this.

The result was, Menke explained to Miller, that he became "dopey." When Dempsey got to Philadelphia he was drowsy, and finally fell asleep. His handlers, nonplussed, took him for an open air automobile ride over the bumpy roads in Philadelphia, but it did no good.

Dempsey climbed into the ring a dull, languid fighter—totally unlike his usual tigerish self. Everybody knows the result. He fought throughout as if in a daze—and he lost his cherished crown.

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Washington Times published a copyrighted story from New York, written by its sports editor, Kirk Miller, to the effect that Jack Dempsey doped himself on the eve of the fight in which he lost the world heavyweight championship to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia in September, 1926.

Since that rainy night in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium the question, "What was the matter with Dempsey?" has been propounded thousands of times. The "correct answer"—namely, that the glamorous Dempsey administered laudanum to himself because he was under a severe nervous strain due to training camp worries—was given to him, Miller writes, by Frank G. Menke of the King Features Syndicate, to whom Dempsey gave the correct answer months after the title was lost to Tunney. Miller describes Menke as "closer to Dempsey than any individual not in his immediate family or fight household."

Menke did not print the story himself, Miller explains, because, coming from him it would amount to an alibi for Dempsey, and Dempsey never alibied.

Miller quotes Menke to this effect: "Jack Dempsey was loaded with laudanum the night he fought Tunney in Philadelphia. He administered it himself. Laudanum contains a high percentage of opium."

Dopey Appearance
"And that explains Dempsey's dopey appearance in his corner while awaiting the bell and is basic explanation for his woeful showing during the entire 10 rounds of mulling . . .

"No fighter in training for an important battle ever was harassed as was Dempsey in 1926. Jack Kearns was bombarding him with suits, writs and other legal processes. Servers were lurking in every ambush and Dempsey had to toss a double guard around his cottage to secure some protection."

"Upon one occasion he had to hide in a swamp to avoid being served with new papers and on the Saturday before the fight an effort was made to slap him into jail over Sunday in default of bond."

Nervous System Damaged
"Everything that could make a man nervous and upset him was done by Kearns or the battery of legal counsel hired by Kearns, and all of this did irreparable damage to Dempsey's nervous system."

"This nervousness brought about a natural and to be expected condition

Heavyweights To Sling Gloves In Battle Thursday

Sharkey And Schmeling Await Gong That Sends Them Into Action

FIGHT FANS ARE STARTING TREK

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

NEW YORK, June 11.—By special train, by boat and by automobile, a great throng of out-of-town fight fans today headed for New York, lured by the spectacle and drama to be presented in Yankee stadium tomorrow night when Jack Sharkey of the U. S. A. and Max Schmeling of Germany engage in their scheduled 15-round battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

From Chicago, Boston, Detroit, Cincinnati, Washington, C. S. Scranton, Pa., and other cities, the first of the "specials" bearing followers of Sharkey and Schmeling were clicking over the rails bound for the battleground. At the same time long queues of New Yorkers, many of German nationality, were lined up before the ticket offices at Madison Square Garden, eager to purchase dueling passes.

Crowd of 70,000.
"Seventy thousand spectators sure" was the crisp prediction of Joe Boynton, veteran head of the ticket sellers, this morning. That means a "gate" of $700,000. Boynton added that he was having no trouble with speculation, although a few were observed skulking around the Garden lobby.

Sharkey and Schmeling were prepared for their supreme test. Sharkey is in New York with his retinue while Schmeling rested at his Endicott, N. Y., camp. They are seemingly trained to the keenest fighting edge and both expressed themselves as confident of victory.

Sharkey, accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey and John Buckley, his manager, and Mrs. Buckley, motored to New York last night from Orangeburg. After weighing in at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, as will his opponent, Sharkey will retire to a hotel near the stadium.

Wife Not to Attend.
Mrs. Sharkey does not plan to see the fight. She will remain at the hotel and await her husband's return for the first news of the encounter. Max's mother, Mrs. Amanda Schmeling, who is in Germany, will listen to a description of the battle over the radio.

Sharkey is expected to tip the scales at around 197 pounds at the official weighing in. This was his weight when he fought Phil Scott of Great Britain in Miami, Fla., last February. Schmeling will weigh about 187 pounds.

As the hour of battle approached, popular interest veered for the time being to the question of a referee. The referee will not be named until just before the principals climb through the ropes. Neither Sharkey nor Schmeling has offered any objection to the New York state athletic commission's plan to select the referee just before the fray begins.

Candidates Named.
Ed Forbes, Jim Crowley and Kid McPartland are named by boxing experts as the most likely candidates for the job. Others mentioned are Patsy Haley, Arthur Donovan, Jack O'Sullivan, Mike Hyles, Tommy Sheridan and Jack Dorman. The decision to defer selection of the referee until the last moment is predicated on the desire to see that the bout is handled absolutely on the square.

Betting odds lengthened a trifle today in the absence of Schmeling money. Sharkey was the favorite at 9 to 5. Odds of 1 to 4 were offered against Sharkey scoring a knockout and 1 to 6 against Schmeling accomplishing the feat. Broadway betting commissioners indicated that most of the so-called "wise" money (that of gamblers) is on Sharkey.

Police arrangements for handling the crowd have been completed. In addition to hundreds of policemen a small army of trained ushers have been assigned their positions for tomorrow night.

Lots of Writers.
The demand for press seats has topped any previous bout. Garden officials stated. Application for 1,000 press seats have been received, 300 of which are for the "working press" at the ringside. Newspaper men will be on hand from 26 states in this country and also from Germany, England, Canada, Cuba and the Argentine.

THE GOLF BUG

After the very mean weather of yesterday, the niblick fraternity will be out in full force again today. The golfers do not like rainy weather but ain't we all.

The Municipal Course golfers are anxiously awaiting the start of the big tournament. It will be the first tourney to be held at the Muncy Course and Manager Hart is doing everything in his power to make it a big success. Tommy Blake is chairman of the Tournament committee.

There will be upwards of a 100 or more golfers in the quest for various prizes that have been offered. There are some very good golfers at the public links and the competition is going to be keen.

Mose Mancine, the caddy-master is arranging the handicaps. Mancine is a former Field Club employee, and is proving quite valuable to Manager Hart at the City Course. Mancine has a fine class of caddies working at the present time.

It may be that New Castle will have a representative at the National Public Links tournament this year. For a while there this tourney is to be held, but there is no reason why New Castle's best public links golfer cannot attend.

City council and the Municipal golf committee are coming in for their share of praise this year. The course is slowly becoming one of the finest around here and for the second year the course is very far advanced. By next year the full 18-holes should be in excellent condition.

Yankees Meet Tigers In Series of Games As Athletics And Indians Tangle

LEFTY GROVE DROPS HIS FIRST GAME

By HENRY McEMORE

NEW YORK, June 11.—Opportunity, whose knuckles must be badly bruised by now, will rap on the Yankees' door today and is likely to get an answer.

While the leading Athletics and the third place Indians are cutting one another's throats out in Cleveland, the Yanks, who are but two games back of the Indians and five games in the rear of the A's, open a stay in Detroit.

The sixth place Tigers, getting poor pitching and worse hitting these days, should be easy meat for the Shawkeymen. Yesterday they whipped St. Louis 5 to 3, their record for the first western excursion now stands at five victories and two defeats. Pennock did the winning pitching yesterday, letting the Browns down with seven hits.

Grove Loses First.
Chicago scored one run in the 11th inning to turn back the Athletics 7-6. Grove, who relieved Quinn in the tenth frame, was charged with the defeat, his first of the year.

Boston pounded four pitchers to overwhelm the Tigers, 12-6. The Sox got 17 hits.

Washington and Cleveland were rained out.

St. Louis snapped its losing streak by whipping the Braves in a rain-soaked wigwam, 2-1, after ten innings. The game was halted several times by rain and fog. Bob Smith shut out the Cards for eight innings but weakened in the ninth.

Two walks and a single gave the Cards a tie. In the tenth the Cards got the winning tally on Adams' double and High's single.

In the only other National league game the Phillies, behind the strong fingering of Phil Collins, turned back the Cubs, 6-2. Klein helped the Phils with his 16th home run of the year.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Emmett Rocco, heavyweight of Ellwood City, is doing light training these days preparatory to work several weeks from now in the roped arena. Emmett had the misfortune of injuring his right hand in a bout with Gene Stanton at Akron and has been out of the ring for weeks.

Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, will tackle Harry Kid Brown in a 10-round bout Saturday night at Conneaut Lake. Johnny Berchold is the promoter. It will be the first boxing bout held at the lake this summer.

It has been decided not to hold a boxing show Monday night at the Jolly Bowl and the Billy Jones-Chuck Burns match has been cancelled. The next show will be held June 16.

According to reports from New York, Jack Sharkey has been installed as a nine to five favorite over Max Schmeling, the German. They meet Thursday night in New York. The winner will wear the heavyweight crown.

Billy Arnold winner of the Indianapolis race has arrived at Altoona and will participate in the Altoona national championship auto classic. There are 19 entries. The race is to be held June 14.

Gale Vannorsdal, athletic coach of Zanesville, Ohio, high school has resigned to accept a similar post with South High of Cleveland. Vannorsdal has been coaching at Zanesville since 1926.

George Paul who sustained a fractured skull when his jumped failed to take the post and rail jump at Sewickley is reported improving in a Pittsburgh hospital.

Chick Hafe's condition is serious according to a physician's examination of the St. Louis Cardinal outfielder. He has been ordered to take a good rest before rejoining the Cards.

George Sergeant Severely Injured

Central Presbyterian Pitcher Hit On Elbow By Pitched Ball Forced To Retire

The First Congregational baseball team of the New Castle Church League wishes to offer a public apology to the Central Presbyterians.

In the game played at the Clifton Flats Field, in which Morgan was injured, it was overlooked in the announcement of the game that George Sergeant star pitcher of the Central Presbyterian team was also severely injured when hit on the elbow by a pitched ball. He had to retire from the game.

The management of the Congregational team regrets the fact that Sergeant's injury was overlooked.

The game scheduled for Friday night of this week between the Congregational and Baptists will be played at the Clifton Flats Field instead of the Scotland Lane field, due to the G. A. R. encampment.

Fable: Once a witness before a Senate committee gave a clear and concise answer to every question.

WHAT DOES "B. P." MEAN TO YOU?

TO SOME IT MEANS

BOASTFUL PAPA

...with his chest stuck out, his chin stuck up, and his thumbs stuck into his vest, he tells the world his heir is THERE, and you can believe it or not. But to thousands, "B.P." means "BAYUK PHILLIES"—the Best Present for Father's Day (that's next Sunday).

"PHILLIES" are ripe-tobacco cigars. Notice the word, "ripe!" Only those tobacco leaves that have soaked up enough sun to have a mellow, deep flavor, are ever used in "PHILLIES." Give your Boastful Papa a real chance to boast. Get him a box of "BAYUK PHILLIES" as a gift for Father's Day. He won't have any trouble convincing the world that you know your cigars.

Board Awards Bids Last Night For Repairs In Local Schools

Plan To Raise Tuition For Students Entering High School From Townships

Three New Teachers Elected
At Meeting For The Coming School Year

ELLWOOD CITY, June 11.—At the regular monthly meeting of the board of education which took place Tuesday evening in the board room of the Lincoln school bids were awarded for general repair work and plumbing. Porter & Hoover were awarded the contract for repair work at the West End and Central schools at a price of $1400. William Clark Co. was awarded the contract for plumbing at the Central school at a price of $1980 and Herge Electric Co. was awarded the electric contract for the West End school at a price of $6950.

It was planned to raise the tuition of township pupils entering the high school next fall from $10 to $12.30. This was deemed necessary due to the fact that there will be 300 new pupils from outside districts to be cared for next year and will cause an overcrowding of the school, and may necessitate the use of the new auditorium for a reporting room. A full report of the matter will be given at the next meeting.

W. Ray Smith, superintendent of schools, in his report gave the amount of time nine local dentists had treated school children gratis. This amounted from one hour to 2½ hours for the past school year. The total number of pupils treated was 34 and the total hours spent by the various dentists on this work was 14½ hours.

Mr. Smith stated that work done by the Community Service League for school children was as follows: 4 tonsillectomies, 4 tested for vision, 1 for teeth and 6 treated for skin disease, making a total of 15 children under the care of the league during the school term.

The following recommendations were made by Mr. Smith and accepted by the board.

Miss Edith Shrimp, school nurse, will be employed during the month of June in order to devote this time to follow-up work. Her salary was increased from $125 to $135 for the next school term.

Dr. Evans was retained as school physician at a salary of $150 per month.

D. B. Bowen was retained as truant officer at his present salary.

Miss Isadore Routhour as secretary of the Hartman school and Miss Margaret Batters as secretary of the Central school, were both retained for the coming year.

Ray Matlocks will be retained as assistant to the superintendent of schools.

Three new teachers were employed for the coming school year. They are Miss Margaret Clark, Miss Pauline Myers and Raymond Ralston.

The high school librarian's report showed that a great deal of interest was being taken in the use of the library, and that the past year was a most successful one. Five hundred and forty-three new books were bought and put into circulation and 13 magazines were subscribed for use in the library. The report showed 12,052 books on hand at the present time.

The board decided to pay the boys who have been acting as traffic police since the second semester $1.25 each.

It has been customary to present each boy $5 at Christmas, $2.50 being paid by the board and the remainder by the city, but it was discovered that boys who worked the first semester and received the money would be transferred to another school, while the ones taking their places would receive none.

A request from the Ellwood City mushball league for permission to use the high school field was granted with the restriction that cars must be kept from the field.

Local Pigeon Wins Race Of Three Hundred Miles

Four hundred miles will be the distance flown by racing pigeons entered in the next race, which is scheduled for Saturday, June 14. W. H. Cooper of S. Jefferson street, a member of the original racing pigeon club, will enter several birds in this race.

Unusually splendid records have been made by two of Mr. Cooper's racers during the past two races in which they have been entered. The Original and Grand Racing Pigeon clubs flew a 300-mile yearling race from Greenfield, Ind., on last Sunday. The birds were liberated in the Indiana town by the agent of the express company at 6 a. m. and the first bird to report was "Baby Gold" to the Janik loft at 1:08 p. m., followed by "Black Hawk" from the Davis loft and "New Castle Queen" taking third place, the latter being from Mr. Cooper's loft.

A speed of 1115.459 was made by the winning bird and a speed of 1032.027 was made by Mr. Cooper's New Castle Queen. Thirty pigeons from 12 lofts competed. On May 31 a 30-mile old bird race was flown, and "New Castle Queen" belonging to W. H. Cooper, won the first prize. The speed was good, considering the windy weather conditions. The average speed for Mr. Cooper's bird was 1167.793. Speed made by the second bird was 1161.536. This race was flown from Greenfield, Ind. Thirty-eight racers were entered in the race. Mr. Cooper believes that the next race will be very interesting, it being over a distance of 400 miles. The

BUMS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OFFER OF AID

(International News Service) JOLIET, Ill., June 11.—John Samuels, truck farmer near here, has lost his faith in human nature, as the result of a patriotic effort to relieve the unemployment situation. When Samuels needed some extra help on his farm, he drove to town and told Police Captain Jas. W. McCarty that he had work to do. The captain gladly led him to the loquacious, where twelve vagrants were living at the expense of the community. Samuels offered them 40 cents an hour and their breakfast for their services, and they accepted. Samuels bought the breakfasts, and then loaded his dozen new employees into his truck. One of them, younger and brighter looking than the rest, rode in the cab with him. When the truck reached the farm, after stopping at several railroad crossings, the eleven, sons of rest in the rear had vanished. The lone survivor was indignant. "You ought to go back and tell the police," he said. "Maybe they can round those guys up and make them work out their breakfasts, anyway."

Samuels did, and Captain McCarty promised to do his best to recover the deserters and take them to the farm in the patrol wagon. "That one young fellow's a real bright lad though," he told the Captain. "I think maybe I'll give him a regular job."

He walked out to his truck and drove home.

The bright young fellow had joined his mates in flight.

Two Injured When Building Collapses (International News Service) PITTSBURGH, June 11.—Two men were injured seriously today when an abandoned building in which they were sleeping collapsed and buried them beneath the debris. Police and firemen dug the men, Patrick Morgan, 53, and Philip Dropchak, 37, from the wreckage and rushed them to Allegheny General hospital. Both men were homeless itinerants, according to police, and had sought refuge from last night's unseasonably cold weather in the one and a half story brick building at Duquesne way and Tenth street.

ROAMING With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

That rain did one thing Tuesday afternoon that provided an interesting sight. It held all the G. A. R. men in the lobby of The Castleton Hotel and one got a view of the old boys in a group. And what a picture. Not a one under eighty, not a one but was full of pep, and not a one but didn't feel he was as good as he ever was.

It was a day of reminiscence for the vets and as they sat around the ball room and the lobby, fighting the Civil War over again, there were tales told that would look well in print if one could get them. Gettysburg and Vicksburg both of them had their veterans there, and the battles raged all day long.

One vet of the Civil War seems to be missing and that is the veteran of the Naval service. The men who served with Farragut and Erickson, men who laid the blockade in the Mississippi River, none of them seem to be here, they're all veterans of the land service.

One veteran of the infantry suggested that the sailors didn't live as long. Couldn't help but wonder what the veterans of the World War will look like when they are eighty years of

North Scranton Young Man Dies From Severe Cuts

(International News Service) SCRANTON, Pa., June 11.—Francis Duffy, 22, of North Scranton was injured fatally early today when he was pushed through a plate glass window of a store near his home. Duffy, bleeding profusely from cuts about the head and face, was rushed to the state hospital, but died shortly after his admission.

Police are holding William Murphy, John McShea, Thomas Calpin, Aloysius Kulick and Louis Pichione, all of North Scranton, pending completion of their investigation.

Montana Woman Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America. "I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not be long, so I decided to give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 236 lbs. and at present which has been just four weeks, I weigh 223 lbs. And I must say, I feel better. Every way besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity. I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many of my friends in fact, have a number of them taking Kruschen Salts. May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one. A bottle of Kruschen Salts lasts four weeks costs but 85c. Eberk's of New Castle, Inc. or any drugstore in America.

Claim Rankin Drove While Intoxicated To Build $40,000,000 Texas Gas Pipe Line

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Ill., June 11.—Talk about your pipe lines—how'd you like to buy one for $40,000,000? That's exactly the sum this city stood to lose today with the completion of a pipe line that will roll Texas natural gas directly into the city. And this is no pipe-dream, either.

Brooklyn Man Is Slain By Gang

(International News Service) NEW YORK, June 11.—What police declare is a war for slot machine rights in Brooklyn resulted early today in the killing of George De Feo, 34, and the wounding of three others in a Brooklyn street. De Feo, said to have been trying to enlarge the territory where he placed slot machines, was fixing a flat tire on his car when another car, containing the gunmen, swept by. A hail of bullets raked De Feo's group and the four men fell. Abe Reles, 24, has two bullets in his back and may not live. The others were not seriously wounded.

Police returned the fire of the mob. There was no information as to casualties.
